TARIFF BILL READY FOR INTRODUCTION AFTER LONG EFFORT

Modernizes Fordney-McCumber Bill, Is Reported

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The nation's thirty-sixth tariff bill was completed and ready to be introduced in the house today by Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee—the fruit of four months' labor and destined to be of vital consequence in the fortunes of the Hoover administration.

The bill is designed by its Republican sponsors to bring the Fordney-McCumber bill of the early Harding days up to date. President Hoover requested it be limited to revision of schedules which had become ineffective due to various economic changes since the tariff of 1922 became operative.

Republican leaders on the ways and means committee, adhering as closely to the president's view as was possible under the severe pulling and hauling of various interests affected, held the changes to about 20 per cent of the schedules in the existing law. It was said. The new bill, an 8,500 word document covering 200 pages, as bulky as a novel, is destined to undergo many changes, especially in the senate, before it becomes law.

Sugar, wool, hides and cement have been the big controversial subjects in committee and these disputes will be carried to the floors of both houses.

Chairman Hawley arranged to introduce the bill to the senate at noon. The full ways and means committee has been summoned to meet Thursday and formally report the bill, but the Republican majority will prevail and the fight will then be carried to the floor of the house.

Tariff bills have made political history in the past. It was a break in the Republican party over the Payne-Aldrich bill that caused the fatal 1912 split, wrecking the Taft administration. The new Hawley-Smoot tariff bill is expected to disclose the extent of Mr. Hoover's abilities as a moulder of legislative policies for he is faced with determined opposition within his own party, particularly in Pennsylvania where the powerfully organized manufacturers are already far advanced in an offensive to break over the White House limitations and make wholesale and drastic upward revision of schedules.

SAY FLEEING REBEL FACED DEATH AFTER ESPOUSING REVOLT

Indictment Will Be Asked Against Four Refugees

NEW YORK, May 7.—Charges that the Mexican government wanted to execute Salvador Ataca because of his sympathy for the rebel cause were made today by W. H. Fryer, counsel for Ataca.

Ataca, Fryer, Russell B. Matthews, an immigration official stationed at El Paso, Texas, and Antonio Gomez Maquero, Ataca's secretary, were arrested in a hotel here while in possession of $750,000, allegedly loot from Mexican banks.

Federal District Attorney Chas. H. Tuttle will before a grand jury and ask an indictment against the four men on charges of conspiring to aid Ataca to escape to Spain.

Fryer said Ataca owned extensive properties in Mexico, including a silver mine which he characterized as "priceless." About $1,500,000 was contributed to the Mexican rebels by Ataca, Fryer said, and for that reason much of Ataca's property in Mexico had been confiscated by the federal government.

Meanwhile, David P. Siegel, counsel for the four men, said the arrest of Ataca and his companions here had been "inspired" by the Mexican government which was seeking to harass Ataca at every opportunity.

MONEY FOUND IN ATTIC

Did you know that you might have money secreted in your attic? Undoubtedly there are articles stored away in that nook that can easily be turned into money. Why clutter your home with needless pieces of furniture, old clothes and other things, not worth enough to destroy but of no value to you.

How can you do this? By inserting a small ad in the CLASSIFIED AD columns of THE GAZETTE at small expense. CLASSIFIED has turned many an attic into a treasure hold. Why don't you?

BANDITS SOUGHT AFTER BROKER IS WOUNDED

TOLEDO, O., May 7.—Police surrounded two downtown office buildings and a hotel here today in an effort to capture two bandits, one of whom shot Karl R. Irwin, a diamond broker, a few moments earlier.

Irwin's death was expected momentarily. He was shot in the mouth and the bullet emerged near his right ear. He was in his office on the tenth floor of the Section National Bank building when the robbers entered.

While one of them engaged him in conversation the other drew a revolver and ordered him to raise his hands.

Irwin began arguing, then attempted to drop behind a counter. The bandit fired and the bullet struck the broker as he dropped to the floor.

The bandits fled, one of them going into the office of W. A. Boardman, secretary of the East Side Iron Elevator Company who discovered him ten minutes later.

As the robber fled, Boardman jerked a gun from a drawer and fired at him. Meantime the other robber was escaping.

Police were summoned and the bank building and two adjoining structures were surrounded in the belief the bandits were still hiding in one of them. Detectives were then assigned to each floor and they began combing the buildings.

FIVE FLYERS ARE KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Wing Of Bombing Plane
Collapses At Practice

BOURGES, France, May 7.—Five French military aviators were killed when one wing of their plane collapsed during bombing practice here last night.

The bodies were allowed to remain in the wreckage until today because two unexploded bombs still were in the bomb racks when the plane crashed. Officials at Avord Field, where the crash occurred, feared the bombs would explode if attempts to extricate the bodies were made.

FOUR FILM STARS INVOLVED IN DAY'S NEWS; CONNIE MARRIES

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—Four actresses prominent on the screen and in Hollywood affairs were in the news today for three widely different reasons.

Constance Talmadge was awaiting her marriage to Townsend Netcher, Chicago business man, in Beverly Hills tomorrow night.

Jacqueline Logan was concerned with marriage, too. In two more days she and William L. Winston can obtain a license to legalize their Mexican marriage.

Virginia Lee Corbin was missing from home, assertedly because of a quarrel with her mother.

Kathryn McGuire had a broken ankle.

The wedding of Miss Talmadge, who has been married twice before, and Netcher, who is taking his second marital venture, will occur at the home of the actress's sister, Mrs. Natalie Keaton, wife of Buster Keaton late Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Logan and Winston were married in Tajana several months ago, then separated when they found the ceremony was not recognized in the United States because the actress' divorce from Robert L. Gillespie, Los Angeles real estate man, had not become final.

The final decree was filed last week and the couple filed notice of intent to wed yesterday. They must wait three days under the California laws.

Virginia Lee Corbin was missing as far as the police juvenile bureau was concerned because her mother did not know her whereabouts and reported the fact.

The girl's attorney, David A. Hill, said she had had trouble at home and had "gone away for a while." The two had been at odds since the mother assertedly attempted suicide a year ago and the actress signed, but withdrew, an insanity complaint.

Attorney Hill said that Miss Corbin had telephoned him Friday and said that she would go crazy if she had to remain with her mother.

Miss McGuire suffered the broken ankle while playing tennis with her husband, George Landy, a publicity director, and Colleen Moore and the latter's husband, John McCormick.

Mrs. Dennett is at liberty on bond pending an appeal of the $300 fine which was imposed after her conviction. Members of the committee were instructed to seek the aid of Representative Ruth Pratt in obtaining a congressional inquiry into censorship exercised by the postoffice department.

The committee consists of Ruth Hale, Helen Todd, Katharine Schlar, Helen Kennan and Martha Flannan.

MAN PERISHES IN FLAMES

CHILLICOTHE, O., May 7.—Glenn Satchel, 28, father of five children, was burned to death today when he attempted to kindle a fire with kerosene.

In the resultant explosion Satchel was enveloped in flames.

The tragedy occurred at the Satchel farm home six miles west of here.

TWO INJURED WHEN ATTACKED BY THUGS

CLEVELAND, O., May 7.—Robbers using violent tactics sent two men to the hospitals early today.

Arthur Webster, 26, was robbed of $10 and the truck he was driving after being battered down.

William Pulfough, 48, was stabbed in the abdomen by one of three thugs and robbed of $12.

Breakfasts Lightly; Enjoys Special Privileges

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Harry F. Sinclair, dominant figure in the oil world, arose from a hard cot shortly after 5:45 a. m. today to serve the first day of a three-months sentence in district jail for contempt of the senate.

The multi-millionaire wore the expensive blue suit he had on when he arrived at the jail last night. He had discarded his white shirt for a pale tan one. A dark, four-inch hand tie and a light blue handkerchief protruding from the breast pocket of his coat completed his ensemble.

Sinclair issued a friendly but restrained greeting to fellow prisoners in the dormitory to which he was assigned and walked hurriedly to the mess hall where he sat at a long wooden table and read two Washington newspapers while munching toast and drinking black coffee. He passed up a cereal, ham and eggs, French fried potatoes and corn muffins.

The wealthy oil man was permitted to keep such valuables as he brought to the jail with him, including a wrist watch to which he referred often as he ate.

After completing his breakfast, Sinclair returned to the dormitory and later was examined by Major William L. Peak, superintendent of the jail, who assigned him to duty as assistant to Dr. Morris Hyman, jail physician.

Sinclair is a registered pharmacist and will have charge of the new task which he will be virtually inaccessible to curiosity seekers.

At the jail it was explained the post had not been filled before because no registered pharmacist had been received there in years.

Sinclair studied pharmacy at Kansas University.

The wealthy prisoner started his new task shortly after receiving the assignment. His hours will be from 8 a. m. until 4 p. m. He will not have to arise as early as he did today. One of the privileges enjoyed by special detail prisoners is permission to sleep until 7 a. m. if desired and still have time for a leisurely breakfast before reporting for work.

Working with him in the drug room will be Miss Katherine Wright, 25, who has been attached to the jail staff as a nurse since July 1.

Sinclair received in this morning's mail one letter which was delivered to him unread.

None of the mail addressed to prisoners assigned to office work was read by jail officials as these prisoners are placed on their honor to violate none of the institution's regulations. Neither are their outgoing letters subjected to censorship.

A large number of letters received for Sinclair at the jail bore his arrival were returned to the senders with the notation that he was not at the address indicated. For the next ninety days, however, mail addressed to him at 200 19th Street, S. E., which is the address of the district jail—should reach him promptly.

Major Peak already has received letters and telephone calls from a number of cranks who offered suggestions regarding Sinclair or wished to see him. A woman who telephoned Peak this morning said she felt sorry for the oil magnate and wished to bring him some dainties which she thought he would prefer to regular prison fare. Her request was refused.

OHIO DOCTORS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING OF STATE ASSOCIATION

Combating Ills Of Mankind Discussed By Physicians

CLEVELAND, O., May 7.—New methods of combating the ill that beset mankind were due for intensive discussion as 1500 members of the medical profession gathered in Cleveland today for the annual meeting of the Ohio State Medical Association.

The convention was officially opened with an address of welcome by Dr. Richard Dexter, president of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine.

This morning was devoted to a business session of the house of delegates, the association governing body, under the chairmanship of the association's president, Dr. C. W. Stone of Cleveland.

Meanwhile members had their choice of visiting clinics at various Cleveland hospitals or attending a series of demonstrations at the Western Reserve University Medical School.

The demonstration at Reserve included the following:

X-ray motion pictures showing the behavior of the stomach during digestion. Dr. T. Wingate Todd, professor of anatomy.

Motion picture: intestinal movements due to acute intoxication with soluble toxic products of the colon-typhoid group. Prof. E. E. Ecker, Dr. Ecker by working with large masses of germs of typhoid variety has shown these germs precipitate a chemical toxin or poison.

Types and range of congenital lesions of the heart. Dr. M. B. Patten. Dr. Patten recently visited the principal anatomical museums of Europe to study the various defects which are found in the heart at the time of birth.

Epidemiology of the acute communicable diseases in a large city. Drs. Emerson McGrail and G. E. Harston.

Motion picture: clinical and experimental investigation of ureteral movements. Dr. H. R. Trattner.

Newer aspects of Addison's disease and adrenal insufficiency. Prof. J. M. Rogoff. Dr. Rogoff recently showed that changes in the skin pigment, is caused by failure of the outer layer or cortex of the adrenal glands to function properly.

Clinical registration of heart sounds. Dr. C. J. Wiggers, professor of physiology. Dr. Wiggers will demonstrate experiments with an electric cardiograph which makes heart beats visible.

TARIFF BILL READY FOR INTRODUCTION AFTER LONG EFFORT

Modernizes Fordney-McCumber Bill, Is Reported

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The nation's thirty-sixth tariff bill was completed and ready to be introduced in the house today by Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee—the fruit of four months' labor and destined to be of vital consequence in the fortunes of the Hoover administration.

The bill is designed by its Republican sponsors to bring the Fordney-McCumber bill of the early Harding days up to date. President Hoover requested it be limited to revision of schedules which had become ineffective due to various economic changes since the tariff act of 1922 became operative.

Republican leaders on the ways and means committee, adhering as closely to the president's view as was possible under the severe pulling and hauling of various interests affected, held the changes to about 20 per cent of the schedules in the existing law. It was said. The new bill, an 85,000 word document covering 200 pages, as bulky as a novel, is destined to undergo many changes, especially in the senate, before it becomes law.

Sugar, wool, hides and cement have been the big controversial subjects in committee and these disputes will be carried to the floors of both houses.

Chairman Hawley arranged to introduce the bill to the senate at noon. The full ways and means committee has been summoned to meet Thursday and formally report the bill. Democrats on the committee are expected to vote against the bill but the Republican majority will prevail and the bill will then be carried to the floor of the house.

Tariff bills have made political history in the past. It was a break in the Republican party over the Payne-Aldrich bill that caused the fatal 1912 split, wrecking the Taft administration. The new Hawley-Smoot tariff bill is expected to disclose the extent of Mr. Hoover's abilities as a moulder of legislative policies for he is faced with determined opposition within his own party, particularly in Pennsylvania where the powerfully organized manufacturers are already far advanced in an offensive to break over the White House limitations and make wholesale and drastic upward revision of schedules.

SAY FLEEING REBEL FACED DEATH AFTER ESPOUSING REVOLT

Indictment Will Be Asked Against Four Refugees

NEW YORK, May 7.—Charges that the Mexican government wanted to execute Salvador Ataca because of his sympathy for the rebel cause were made today by W. H. Fryer, counsel for Ataca.

Ataca, Fryer, Russell, B. Matthews, an immigration official stationed at El Paso, Texas, and Antonio Gomez Maquero, Ataca's secretary, were arrested in a hotel here while in possession of $750,000, allegedly loot from Mexican banks.

Federal District Attorney Chas. H. Tuttle will go before a grand jury and ask an indictment against the four men on charges of conspiring to aid Ataca to escape to Spain.

Fryer said Ataca owned extensive properties in Mexico, including a silver mine which he characterized as "priceless." About $1,500,000 was contributed to the Mexican rebels by Ataca, Fryer said, and for that reason much of Ataca's property in Mexico had been confiscated by the federal government.

Meanwhile, David P. Siegel, counsel for the four men, said the arrest of Ataca and his companions here had been "inspired" by the Mexican government which was seeking to harass Ataca at every opportunity.

MONEY FOUND IN ATTIC

Did you know that you might have money secreted in your attic? Undoubtedly there are articles stored away in that nook that can easily be turned into money. Why clutter up your home with needless pieces of furniture, old clothes and other things, not worth enough to destroy but of no value to you.

How can you do this? By inserting a small ad in the CLASSIFIED AD columns of THE GAZETTE at small expense. CLASSIFIED has turned many an attic into a treasure hold. Why don't you?

BANDITS SOUGHT AFTER BROKER IS WOUNDED

TOLEDO, O., May 7.—Police surrounded two downtown office buildings and a hotel here today in an effort to capture two bandits.

One of whom shot Karl R. Irwin, a diamond broker, a few moments earlier.

Irwin's death was expected momentarily. He was shot in the mouth and the bullet emerged near his right ear. He was in his office on the tenth floor of the Sector National Bank building when the robbers entered.

While one of them engaged him in conversation the other drew a revolver and ordered him to raise his hands.

Irwin began arguing, then attempted to drop behind a counter. The bandit fired and the bullet struck the broker as he dropped to the floor.

The bandits fled, one of them going into the office of W. A. Boardman, secretary of the East Side Iron Elevator Company who discovered him ten minutes later.

As the robber fled Boardman jerked a gun from a drawer and fired at him. Meantime the other robber was escaping.

Police were summoned and the bank building and two adjoining structures were surrounded in the belief the bandits were still hiding in one of them. Detectives were then assigned to each floor and they began combing the buildings.

Wing Of Bombing Plane Collapses At Practice

BOURGES, France, May 7.—Five French military aviators were killed when one wing of their plane collapsed during bombing practice here last night.

The bodies were allowed to remain in the wreckage until today because two unexploded bombs still were in the bomb racks when the plane crashed. Officials at Avord Field, where the crash occurred, feared the bombs would explode if attempts to extricate the bodies were made.

DELEGATES ATTEND LEGION AUXILIARY DISTRICT MEETING

Two Hundred And Fifty At Spring Convention.

Two hundred and fifty delegates from the Southwest District of the American Legion Auxiliary are attending the spring meeting, which opened in the assembly room of the Court House here, Tuesday morning. Reports from committee chairmen and workers occupied the morning program.

At the noon hour luncheon was served by members of Foody Post of Xenia.

Following the luncheon the women were scheduled to visit the O. S. and S. O. Home to see a dress parade of the Cadet Battalion.

The morning session was called to order by Mrs. E. P. Middleton, Urbana, Southwest district chairman. The advancement of colors carried by two members of the local auxiliary preceded the pledge to the flag. The Rev. W. N. Shank then gave the invocation. Mrs. Fred Baldwin gave the welcome representing the auxiliary and Louise Hammerle, superintendent of Xenia schools gave the welcome for Foody Post. Mrs. William Coffin, Cincinnati, responded.

The secretary then read the minutes of the November meeting, after which reports on hospital visits, child welfare, Americanism, membership, unit activities, and department work were given by the chairman of each committee.

Reports were heard from Mrs. W. M. Coffin, Cincinnati, Mrs. C. L. Darlington, Xenia, Mrs. D. E. Waring, Norwood, Mrs. W. S. DeWeese, Troy, Mrs. Westfield, Mrs. Redmond, Dayton, Mrs. Murel Craig, Greenville, Mrs. Marie Moore, Mrs. Burton, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Jones, Circleville.

FREIGHTER FREED FROM LAKE SHOALS

ASHTABULA, May 7.—The freighter D. M. Philbin, aground six miles east of here since last Tuesday, was dragged from the shoals and floated today by the lighter Favorite and the tug Harding of Detroit.

The freighter went aground when the pilot mistook an air route beacon for a shoal. The tugboat, during last week's storm, the vessel was pounded hard by the heavy seas and a number of its crew were injured. Three of them are in General Hospital here in a serious condition.

Hundreds of tons of ore were taken from the boat yesterday. Water was forced in during the tug and lighter succeeded in freeing the freighter.

It is believed the boat will be taken to Conneaut for repairs.

WON'T ARREST HEFLIN

Senator From Alabama Escapes Punishment For Not Having Permit.

ROCKTON, Mass., May 7.—A resolution seeking the arrest of U. S. Senator Heflin of Alabama has missed its mark by as wide a margin as the historic empty bottle which was hurled at him here March 18.

By a vote of 20 to 1, the Brockton common council decided last night that the senator should not be summoned before local district court for addressing a Ku Klux Klan meeting in Vasa Hall last St. Patrick's Day without a permit.

The only councilman who voted in favor of the resolution was Howard Coleman, its author. His twenty fellow councilmen voted to table it and as a unanimous vote would be necessary to recall the resolution at a later date, it appeared certain that Senator Heflin never would face the court.

THREE HELD IN POISON BOOZE INVESTIGATION

Probe Launched As Victim Blinded By Bad Liquor.

CLEVELAND, O., May 7.—Two boys and a man, alleged peddlers of poison liquor, were held here today pending analysis of a quantity of liquor found in the man's store.

Charles Fulgham, 28, a victim of liquor said to have come from the place, was reported to be in a serious condition, and a raid on the store was made by detectives on complaint of Fulgham's family.

Three other men who drank with Fulgham were to be sought as soon as Fulgham's condition became such that he could reveal their names.

Fulgham was stricken by complete paralysis of sight, speech and hearing a short time after he partook of the liquor. His hearing had returned early today but he still was sightless and speechless.

Accompanied by Fulgham's brother, detectives went to the store last night. The brother entered the store, and from a 14-year-old boy bought a pint of liquor for a dollar.

After questioning, the boy revealed that the liquor supply was kept in a suite on an upper floor. Upon going there they found a nine-year old boy who filled a pint bottle from a five-gallon container for them.

After a wait of two hours, the detectives trapped the owner of the place.

Dr. F. W. Reed, who attended Fulgham, said it would be a day or two before the full effects of the liquor could be determined. He said the liquor undoubtedly contained a powerful poison, according to police.

His arrest is the second to be made on information supplied by post office inspectors. Steve Zoccoli, Midland, Pa., merchant, was arrested in Pittsburgh recently. He is at liberty under $15,000 bond pending outcome of a fight for extradition.

SUBPOENA FOUR FOR LAX ENFORCEMENT; CHARGES PROPOSED

Beetham Acts After Probe; Called "Smoke Screen"

COLUMBUS, O., May 7.—Ouster proceedings against four Lancaster officials loomed today as a result of the Lancaster girl decoy scandal involving State Dry Agents Edward Little of Dayton and John O. Cole of Elyria.

The four officials who may be removed on charges of failing to enforce the prohibition law are Mayor E. U. Hastings, Police Chief Henry J. Wallace, Prosecutor Russell Cunningham and Sheriff Gail Sesler.

The quartet has been subpoenaed to appear before State Prohibition Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham at 2 p. m.

"They will be given an opportunity to explain why the prohibition laws have not been enforced in Lancaster and to show cause why charges should not be filed against them," Commissioner Beetham declared.

"Arrests made and evidence obtained by state inspectors operating in Lancaster prove emphatically," the commissioner said "that these officials have not been enforcing the laws with any degree of enthusiasm."

Beetham announced his contemplated action following a conference yesterday with Governor Cooper, state commerce director Edward S. Schorr and State Finance Director Harry D. Silver.

The hearing this afternoon will be "open."

Beetham centered his fire on the four officials after a private investigation of the use by inspectors Cole and Little, of girl decoys to entrap Lancaster bootleggers.

According to the commissioner the agents revealed widespread violations of the prohibition laws in Lancaster and Fairfield County "for which the officials must answer."

Beetham said that unless they can show cause why they should not be removed, formal charges will be filed with Governor Cooper. The commissioner was not prepared to say what disposition would be made of the cases against Cole and Little who are accused of being "unethical."

Use of the girl decoys was revealed in testimony in United States Commissioner Joseph Hornor's court here.

Hornor denounced the two dry agents as did Governor Cooper who censured them severely and declared "the further use of decoys, either boys or girls, would not be tolerated in the future."

"I am trying to obtain all the facts in the case of Little and Cole," Beetham said. "They will remain suspended, meanwhile."

Following the conference with Governor Cooper Beetham issued a formal statement expressing disapproval of the use of the girl decoys and at the same time voiced his determination to use "every proper means to enforce the prohibition laws."

"I did not know that young women were being used as decoys and I am sorry that they were," the commissioner said. "I am in hearty accord with Governor Cooper's statement opposing the use of girls who are minors."

"This incident reveals a situation that is of grave and serious consequence, that there are in Ohio many places where girls and boys of high school age, and younger, can go and buy intoxicating liquor is apparent from all the testimony and evidence brought out in these cases in Lancaster."

"Regardless of the methods used there still remains a fact that cannot be rebutted and cannot be overshadowed—that a deplorable condition exists permitting young girls and boys to buy intoxicating liquor."

"The prohibition department will do its best to aid law enforcement officers in bettering conditions but where there is evidence of wilful laxity and disregard for official responsibility on the part of local enforcing officers, necessary steps will be taken to correct such conditions in accordance with the provision of the statute."

Beetham intimated that he has certain evidence against the Lancaster officials but he declined to reveal it.

LANCASTER, O., May 7.—State Prohibition Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham's announcement that ouster proceedings may be filed against four Lancaster city and county officials, was characterized as a "smoke screen" today by County Prosecutor Russell Cunningham, one of the officials involved.

Cunningham issued his statement after Beetham announced that Columbus that form charges against four officials, was characterized as a "smoke screen" today by County Prosecutor Russell Cunningham, one of the officials involved.

NINE INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY MAY GRAND JURY ON MONDAY

The grand jury was in session all day during which it examined more than twenty witnesses, considered ten cases and ignored one.

Three joint indictments were returned against Martin Nooks, 60, and his son, John Kenneth, 30, colored, for assault and battery, resisting an officer and burglary and larceny.

They are accused of attacking Hayes A. McLean, marshal of Cedarville, after he had arrested them May 1, and of stealing twenty fleeces of wool valued at $55.26 after breaking into a barn on the farm of Frank B. Pittstick April 30.

Roy Swain, Jess Allen and his brother, Ralph Allen, Grape Grove, were jointly indicted on a charge of breaking into a chicken house on the farm of Harry Heitner, Federal Pike, May 4.

Two indictments for burglary and larceny were returned against Clifford Tipton, Washington C. H., accused of the theft of seventeen chickens valued at $26.52 from a chicken house on the farm of Curry McElroy and seven chickens worth $11.70 from Glenn Cline last March 15.

James Blair, near Xenia, was indicted for third offense of liquor law violation. Bound over on a charge of possessing liquor Blair is charged in the indictment with having been fined $800 and costs March 2, 1928 for furnishing liquor and $800 and costs January 30, 1924 for possessing liquor.

An indictment against Oliver Warwick charges him with receiving stolen property, January 22. He is accused of receiving and concealing forty-five white Wyandot chickens valued at $67.50, belonging to Guy Dawson.

Calvin Null was indicted for removing mortgaged property from the county with intent to defraud. Authorities claim he mortgaged an auto valued at $175 to Fred Johnston, and that in August, 1928, he removed the car from the county.

Following the customary examination of the County Jail, the jury recommended that prisoners whitewash the interior walls at least once for each term of court and that locks be provided for each cell.

P. C. Nash acted as foreman of the grand jury.

They are accused of attacking Hayes A. McLean, marshal of Cedarville, after he had arrested them May 1, and of stealing twenty fleeces of wool valued at $55.26 after breaking into a barn on the farm of Frank B. Plistick April 30.

Roy Swain, Jess Allen and his brother, Ralph Allen, Grape Grove, were jointly indicted on a charge of breaking into a chicken house on the farm of Harry Heilner, Federal Pike, May 4.

Two indictments for burglary and larceny were returned against Clifford Tipton, Washington C. H., accused of the theft of seventeen chickens valued at $26.52 from a chicken house on the farm of Curry McElroy and seven chickens worth $11.70 from Glenn Cline last March 15.

James Blair, near Xenia, was indicted for third offense of liquor law violation. Bound over on a charge of possessing liquor Blair is charged in the indictment with having been fined $800 and costs March 2, 1928 for furnishing liquor and $800 and costs January 30, 1924 for possessing liquor.

An indictment against Oliver Warwick charges him with receiving stolen property, January 22. He is accused of receiving and concealing forty-five white Wyandott chickens valued at $67.50, belonging to Guy Dawson.

Calvin Null was indicted for removing mortgaged property from the county with intent to defraud. Authorities claim he mortgaged an auto valued at $175 to Fred Johnston, and that in August, 1928, he removed the car from the county.

Following the customary examination of the County Jail, the jury recommended that prisoners whitewash the interior walls at least once for each term of court and that locks be provided for each cell.

P. C. Nash acted as foreman of the grand jury.

SCOUTS PRACTICE FOR BIG JAMBOREE

For the purpose of providing Xenia Boy Scouts some practice in the various events which are to take place at the Scout jamboree to be held at Wittenberg College stadium at Springfield Saturday, May 18, a "preliminary" jamboree will be held in Shawnee Park Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Plans for this local jamboree were made Monday night at a meeting of the District Committee. The Rev. H. B. McElree, vice-president of Tecumseh Area Council, presided.

The local jamboree will take place in conjunction with a field meet planned by Xenia Central High School.

Scouts will practice wall scaling, chariot racing, flint and steel fire-making, water boiling, knot tying, signalling and first aid methods.

There are about 1,000 Scouts in the forty-six troops in Tecumseh Area and all troops are expected to be represented in the Springfield jamboree.

THIRD OPERA WILL BE SUNG TUESDAY

"Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni's famed opera, to be presented at Memorial Hall, Dayton, Tuesday night, is third in the series of opera presentations arranged by Ralph Thomas, Dayton music instructor and former Xenian.

The principal roles will be sung as follows: Martha Dwyer, Ohio winner in the 1928 Atwater Kent Audition, as "Santuzza;" Erma Besty, second in the Dayton Atwater Kent contest, as "Lola;" Harold Deis, Dayton, winner in the 1928 Atwater Kent contest, as "Turiddu;" Venner Musselman as "Alfio" and Erika Hoerner as "Lucia."

The chorus consists of sixty voices. Two of the opera numbers "Aida" and "Rigoletto" won much praise last week and the final will be "La Traviata," to be presented Thursday evening.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875. Adv.

Dairyman, Sixty-Five Years Of Age, Adds His Praise To Powers of Konjola

"I didn't realize what a wonderful medicine Konjola was until I tried it," said Mr. John F. Peckens, Route No. 4, Ashabula.

"Konjola certainly surprised me. I was troubled by a weak stomach.

My food did not digest. Gas formed, and at times there were severe pains. I also suffered from kidney troubles, and there was constant pain in the small of my back. Finally rheumatism took hold and I suffered terribly.

"A friend insisted that I try Konjola. To my surprise, my troubles began to leave me right from the start. The stomach troubles have disappeared, my kidneys act as they should, and the rheumatism has left me. My entire system has been cleansed of all poisons and impurities. I will never miss an opportunity to praise Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Miss Kennedy's Batik Work Praised

THE beautiful Batik work of Miss Helen Kennedy, a Xenia girl now pursuing her studies in modern art in New York City, has attracted the attention of discriminating critics in the metropolis. Mr. Halle Luigi Andres, a distinguished artist and critic, in a broadcast last week on "News From the Galleries" over Station WEVD, spoke of Miss Kennedy's Batiks in her exhibit at the gallery of the New York Society of Craftsman at the Art Center Inc., 65 E. 55th St.

Luigi said that he considered Miss Kennedy's designs the most original he had seen in New York. He called attention in particular to her large golden tapestry "Castles in the Air," and "The Dutch Fishing Boats," lauding her ability to work on velvet which is the most difficult medium of Batik. He spoke of the skill, patience and labor required in the making of Batiks, and of the artist's wonderful eye for color, which he said, is one of the requisites necessary in the production of a beautiful silk mural which will blend into the harmony of a modern home.

The critic also mentioned Miss Kennedy's other exhibits and expressed gratification at having had the opportunity of seeing the display before it was opened to the public. Luigi speaks over the air once a week on matters of current art interest, and is considered one of the best of the critics, being himself an artist.

Miss Kennedy is a member of the New York Society of Craftsman and her summer exhibits will be made in Massachusetts. She began her studies at the Art Institute, Dayton, where the natural skill she had shown as a child with the pen, oil and brush was developed. She also pursued her studies in other places before going to New York last summer to continue her work with the most competent teachers in the art center of the United States.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kennedy, W. Market St., and is expected to come to Xenia next week for a visit with them.

When your child is sleepless.

This remedy rarely fails.

Constipation is a common cause of sleeplessness, both in children and adults. When a child is wakeful and fretful, see if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour, irritating waste. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels, and you have no more anxiety over the child's excitability and wakefulness at night. Children love this harmless "fruity" laxative. It banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and insures pure blood, a clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and helps to build a strong constitution.

See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name "California," so you won't be imposed on by imitators.

THE BRINGER OF GOOD TIDINGS—Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace!—Nahum 1:15.

GLORY IN DISCOVERY

There is nothing impossible about the idea advanced by Meade Minnigerode that French fishermen visited the Newfoundland banks one hundred years before Columbus reached San Salvador, but kept their knowledge of the fishing grounds secret because of the rivalry which existed between themselves and English competitors. Stories to that effect have been in circulation for a long time in the form of more or less vague reports, and if the documents Mr. Minnigerode has recently found in France really substantiate those accounts, they will provide one more proof of the danger of throwing overboard legend, on the ground that it is pure action. More and more, as men delve into the past, it is becoming evident that legend and myth quite often are founded on substantial fact.

As to any effect upon the glory of Columbus, caused by authentication of prior discoveries by wandering French fishermen, it should be nil. That glory does not exist primarily on priority, else it would have been destroyed long ago by records of the voyages of the Northmen and of the Chinese, and by numerous evidences of invasions from north Asia and from Malaysia. The fact remains and always will remain that Christopher Columbus opened up the Americas to the civilized world.

AN OPTIMIST IN INDUSTRY

One of the most optimistic exponents of the new order in business and industry is Mr. Edward A. Filene, well-known Boston merchant. In the May issue of the Atlantic Monthly, Mr. Filene explains why he feels that modern mass production and distribution methods hold out more hope for the average man than any system that has gone before.

"If mass production," he writes, "is used by leaders who understand that in order to make the greatest total profits they must pay even higher wages, constantly reduce prices and keep profits per unit of output down to the very minimum, mass production holds no dangers to the common welfare but on the contrary holds possibilities of accomplishing for mankind all of the good that theoretical reformers or irrational radicals hope to secure by revolutionary means."

CHOKING OFF DISCUSSION

It is difficult to agree with the action of the University of Pittsburgh authorities in preventing the student Liberal Club from holding a meeting to discuss the Mooney-Billings case.

Mooney and Billings are the central figures in one of the most unusual criminal cases in America's legal history. They have been in prison for 13 years and each year it becomes more and more apparent that they are being kept there unjustly. To date, however, they have not been able to gain their release.

Now if this is not a proper subject for discussion by college men, what, in the name of sanity, is? To assemble a group of young men for the purpose of getting a complete education and then forbid them to talk about one of the leading issues of the day is a policy that the university authorities may find rather hard to defend.

Your BROADWAY
By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK, May 4.—An interesting commentary on Boston music lovers' concerns Heifetz, who was urged to serve as a guest player with the Boston Symphony crew. He asked for $5,000, but when they reminded him that it was just as much an honor to play with them as it was to do it for $1,000, which, by the way, he turned over to a charity.

His appearance brought a roof-lifting ovation and his solo was cheered. Later, in the green room, over 100 Boston music devotees collected to fawn on him, but when they recognized Mrs. Heifetz (Florence Vidor, the movie star the very great violinist and the classics were forgotten.

SHOW SHOT TALK

Two old-timers were gabbing about the theater at the Players' club, according to Leon Errol. "I wonder," queried one of the veteran actors, "where the good old ten, twenty and thirty has gone to?" "It's gone up to $3.85!" was the bitter retort.

HAW!

The belly-laugh of a recent New Yorker was in Alex Woolcott's summary of dramatic critics who have been barred by theater managers. Woolcott related the incident in a small New England town concerning a critic who was barred by the local theater impresario. New plays came so infrequently that the critic had to take a daytime job at his other specialty, which was plumbing.

So, when his critical duties were blocked, it was but the work of a moment to brandish his union card, call out the stage hands and close the theater!

HOW IRKSOME

They say that during the Helen Morgan trial the justice was dining with an attorney friend, who said: "Do you realize that this young night club hostess gets three times the salary of a Supreme Court judge?"

"Wait a minute!" was hizzoner's retort, "don't rub it in!"

OBSERVATION

Broadway is now cluttered up with troupers who saved money all year so they could stay away from New York this summer.

IN FEWER WORDS

To hear George Jean Nathan argue it, it is a favorite challenge of the average Broadway playwright to the dramatic critic that if the latter knows so much about plays, why doesn't he write one himself. The same question might be asked of the average Broadway playwright.

TEE-HEE

The Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune for April 18, has just arrived at this desk, and among other diverting scoops is this from a lecture by St. John Ervine: "I saw more drunken women in New York in several months than I saw in England in seven years, and just before the election, thirty-one men were found dead on Broadway." Hit me again, I can still hear him!

The Way
of the
World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

A Captain of Industry

Irving T. Bush is a man you would like. Recently I visited him in his beautiful quarters at the top of the Bush Tower on Forty-second street, New York. Said I, "I have always wanted to know a conspicuously successful American who was not born in a long cabin and never sold papers. I have heard that you were born well-to-do, and have succeeded in spite of that. How can one succeed without handicaps to overcome?"

"Well, the silver spoon may be as great a handicap as poverty," said Irving Bush. "Poverty often proves a stimulus to the young man, and gives him that self-reliance that it is so hard for a rich boy to acquire. There must be a struggle to develop the personality and powers of the young man. The struggle against the limitations imposed by poverty often is the making of the youngster. But I had my struggle, too."

Then he told me how the responsibility for management of the family fortune fell upon him early, when his father died. It was a heavy responsibility, and involved the development of much self-reliance and initiative.

Mr. Bush is about sixty years old, but looks younger. He is very tall. His appearance is distinguished and his manner is modest. I forced him to talk about himself, but he did it with a becoming diffidence. He wore a quiet gray suit. His office is one of the most impressive rooms in the empire of business. Its windows look out and down upon a babel of mid-Manhattan, but the room, thirty stories above the street, is pervaded by a quietness that is given its tone by the soft light that comes through ancient bits of stained glass, set in Gothic window frames.

Mr. Bush is master of the Bush Terminal, one of the largest enterprises in New York. He takes an active interest in directing his business, and I have the impression that he is destined to be one of the greatest figures in world commerce. I feel sure that he will do much greater things during the next ten years than he has done during the rest of his life. He is the kind of man who is not satisfied with the mere accumulation of great wealth. Achievement lures him on.

I believe thoroughly that to be born to the possession of a comfortable fortune is a great handicap to a career. With very few exceptions, our eminent Americans were born poor. They become eminent because of the character formed in the heat of the struggle with poverty. An American who is really somebody despite the handicap of the silver spoon is entitled to great credit and respect. In my mind Irving T. Bush stands out as that kind of a personality. He has done big things, used a creative imagination, and remained modest and unassuming. I take off my hat to him. I offer him as inspiration to young Americans who are struggling against handicaps—especially the handicap of inherited wealth.

Who's Who and
Time's ViewsCENTRAL CONTROL OF
WORLD'S GOLD RESERVE
SUGGESTED

By LOUIS T. McFADDEN
Congressman from Pennsylvania
Louis T. McFadden was born at Troy, Pa., July 25, 1876. He was educated in the public schools of that city and a commercial college. Beginning as an office boy in the First National bank at Canton, Pa., at the age of 16, he gradually rose to the office of president in 1916. He was elected to congress in 1915 and has been re-elected every term since, from the 15th district. He is a Republican.

An international bank, handling debt settlements and payments, governmental, trade and financial transactions and designed to lead to a central management of the world's gold reserve, might be of great value if it could be safeguarded properly.

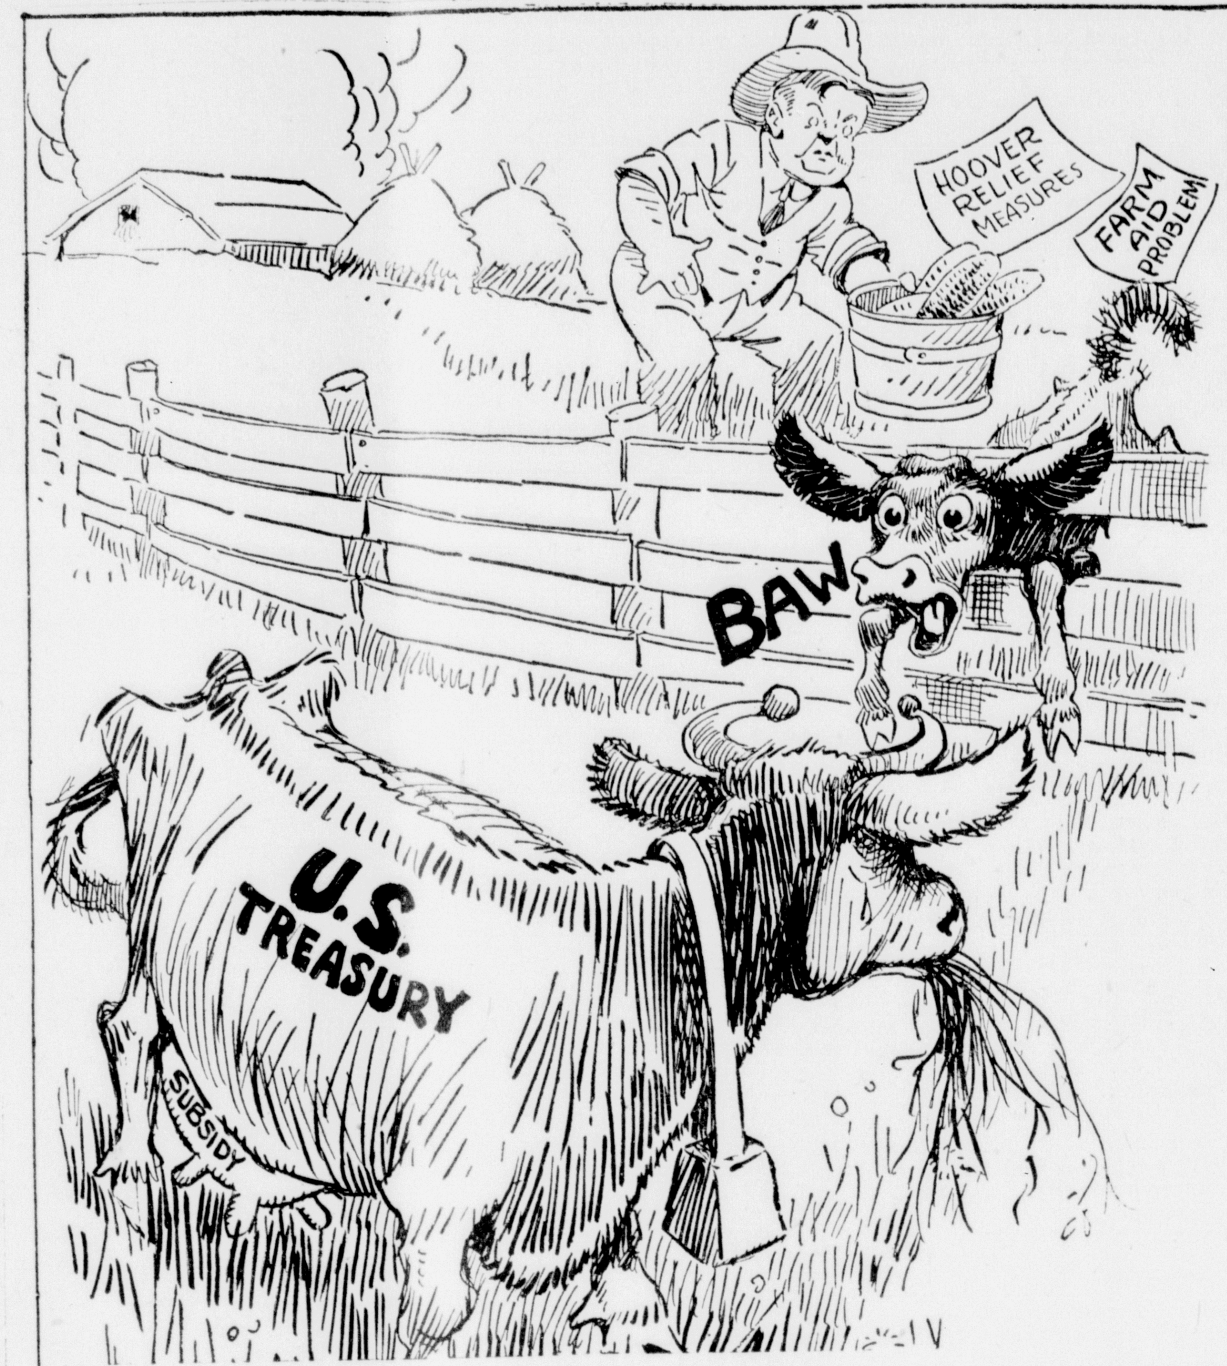

The proposed bank could be of great service as a shock absorber, enabling greater price stabilization and better equilibrium between countries, but such an institution should not determine interest or discount rates and should avoid becoming a super-bank with centralized control.

The principal function of the federal reserve system should be to maintain a proper gold reserve and adjust volume of currency and credit to business needs. It should not become involved in the control of speculation. Banks generally should carry on directly their acceptance market business, with recourse to the federal reserve system only in emergency.

This increasing use of investment securities in the federal reserve system, is causing concern, but I believe that some of the dangers in the situation are modified by the maintenance of an active and increasing market and the quick turnover in this class of securities.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NINE HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Beauty is features is not so important—it is rather the general effect of beauty that counts—the ensemble impression that loveliness in many small ways can give. A woman may have a clear skin, beautiful, healthy hair, a good, straight figure and the right clothes and make-up, and if she combines these with grooming she will seem to be beautiful, the more so if she has an attractive personality to go with them.

The most encouraging thing about this kind of beauty is that any woman may have it. She may have it without possessing one single feature worthy of our artistic admiration, simply by possessing health, and combining it with a natural preference for good grooming.

Of course a lovely complexion is the first requirement of beauty, and a truly lovely complexion is first of all, a healthy one. Furthermore, the attractiveness of hair, eyes and figure are likewise based on health and good care—so that by assuring the fundamental good health of the whole body, the health and good looks of all these members follow quite naturally, and the woman who can put and keep herself in perfect physical condition in the course of beauty will be killing two birds with one stone.

I cannot see why more women do not prefer a healthy, active way of living—the way that leads to beauty—rather than an inactive, lazy, careless way. It is not only happier for their good looks, but so much happier for their complete sense of well being.

The woman, for example, who exercises regularly and vigorously, who eats lightly of the wholesome, simple foods, who drinks plenty of water, sleeps eight hours a night, or more if she is very tired, does not feel weary and listless and discouraged as her less sensible neighbors so often do. She is brimful of "pep" and eager to go on with life, to accomplish all sorts of interesting things, to taste joys to the full.

If, added to her radiant health, she takes simple, effective care of her looks—brushes her hair frequently, massages the scalp faithfully before her shampoo, and shampoos it properly; cleanses and stimulates and tones her skin daily with the preparations suited to its condition; bathes her eyes with an eye cup and eye wash daily, nourishes the delicate skin about them with a rich nourishing cream; if she manicures her nails meticulously and keeps her hands soft by massaging and smoothing with a cream; if she makes up becomingly, using harmonious, blending shades of powder, rouge and lipstick—shades that were chosen because they suit her individuality; if she dresses to her type in the most becoming colors and lines that fashion has to offer, she will be a most attractive woman.

Does all that sound hard to you? It isn't. It is merely an enumeration of the very things that you and your own ideal of beauty is the difference between the results of the haphazard care you now take and the results of that same care taken more conscientiously and faithfully.

What you need to develop is purpose—and the will to carry it out. If you can develop them, you will be able to demand of yourself and for yourself the good looks that will create for you an ensemble effect of beauty.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, finds no fault with the position occupied by Chief Justice William Howard Taft of the United States supreme court.

Even for an ex-president, the senator considers the federal chief justiceship a dignified, useful, adequately salaried post.

Calvin Coolidge is supposed to have retired with savings approximately $400,000, which Senator Fess recognizes as enough to keep him in good ex-presidential style. So it is not altogether from anxiety concerning the average ex-president's ability to take care of himself that the Ohioan urges a constitutional amendment placing life seats in the senate at the disposal of America's former White House tenants.

"It is rather," explains the senator, "because an ex-president still has so much to give to the country than because the country is able to offer a great more to him than I favor retaining him in the public service."

"No other man can possibly acquire a training in national affairs equal to a president's."

"The senate is a thorough school. It involves a study of many problems, and numerous and varied duties."

The prominent position into which the world war forces the United States economically and financially, has developed an improved leadership. This financial leadership has resulted in a close working agreement with the contracts, but no a title of the chief executive's. Every hour in the day he is absorbed in the consideration of vital questions. For a considerable term of years he must weigh them constantly. His course of instruction is the most intensive imaginable. His sources of information are the best obtainable. The subjects he must saturate himself in are of the first importance.

"Following his retirement, obviously the counsel he is equipped to furnish, out of this wealth of experience, is priceless value."

"It seems to me that it can be given to best advantage in the senate."

"True, an ex-president can write independently, as a private citizen. Col. Roosevelt did so. Ex-President Taft was a contributor to the press before his appointment to the supreme bench. Ex-President Coolidge has appeared in print."

"However, such utterances lack the authority of expressions on the senate floor. Their audiences are smaller—limited, in each case, to a single publication. And, after all, they must be written to sell—and shaped accordingly."

"I do not especially argue," said the Buckeye statesman, "for senate votes for ex-presidents. Perhaps a more satisfactory status for them would be something like that of our territorial delegates."

"I have in mind more the value of their advice than of their ballots."

"To give them the latter would require also an additional contutional change."

As remarked, Senator Fess is thinking primarily of saving ex-presidents for the country; not so much of providing for ex-presidents.

"Yet that sometimes is a consideration, too," he added.

"Thomas Jefferson died land poor. His library had to be sold, due to sheer lack of ready money."

"James Madison's circumstances also were so straitened that, after his death, it was necessary to sell his letters to aid his widow."

"John Quincy Adams' account of the actual penury which marked James Monroe's latter years is absolutely pitiful."

"In my judgment it is not in keeping with our republic's dignity that a man who has risen to its highest office should ever be permitted to end his life in literal poverty."

Senator Fess' proposal amendment has not been formally introduced in congress yet; only suggested by him.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

"Spots" on the Lungs
"Will you kindly advise me if spots on the lungs can be permanently cured? Would gaining in weight be an indication of an upward step? Since I have had these spots, I dread the future, and although now there is but a slight cough, the dread of an awful cough, etc., is always on my mind, and it seems to me that death would be better in the beginning. I have always dreaded this disease, and always prayed that I be exempt from it, and now I have it. Would you advise the mountains or the seashore for a vacation, and do you think a change in climate would benefit me? Is marriage impossible?"

Certainly "spots" on the lungs can be cured, K. The fact of the matter is, probably all of us at some time have had these little fected spots and never have known about them, having had enough resistance so that Nature has walled them off and in most instances killed the infection. You didn't say whether you had a diagnosis made of tuberculosis or not. If you have had, then you must have some symptoms—temperature, weakness, etc. The slight cough alone wouldn't be diagnostic of the disease, unless you raised a sputum which had the tuberculosis bacilli in it.

It's a good thing to have a wholesome dread of any disease. When Job said, "The thing I fear has come upon me," he started something. For he made a lot of uninformed people believe that fear alone could bring on a disease. That isn't true; only to the extent that if it is abnormal, the anxiety causes a lack of sleep and appetite and so lowers the resistance.

As far as marriage is concerned, the authorities state it should not be entered into until the discase has been arrested and gives no symptoms for two years. If you have tuberculosis, you should be under the care of a competent physician. He will advise you if you need a change of climate. Tuberculosis can be cured in any climate, but, of course, a climate where one can be out of doors day and night is most favorable.

Now don't worry, K. Tuberculosis is curable. Hundreds of thousands of people have had it and have been cured. But it means that you must co-operate with your physician and so regulate your life that Nature can do the work and cure the article on the subject which goes into the diet, and gives a list of books written for the layman by authorities.

Mrs. L.—There are no lotions or bath compositions, or soaps or salves that will reduce any fat, in spots or generalized.

Massage, persistently applied over a long period of time, will help the fat spots. There are such things as tumors made of fat. These shouldn't be massaged, but removed surgically. Don't reduce, for a disabled heart has troubles enough without having to pump through extra layers of fat and to contend with the effects of an unbalanced diet otherwise.

If you have heart trouble, as you say, you should be under the care of a physician and he will direct your reducing. There's no doubt he will expect you to reduce, for a disabled heart has troubles enough without having to pump through extra layers of fat and to contend with the effects of an unbalanced diet otherwise.

You need instructions on how to reduce, and I suggest you send for our pamphlet on the subject.

Tomorrow: Walk a Mile for a Calorie.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A sense of values and balance is as necessary to success in matrimony as it is in business. If you can be made to realize that mutual understanding and appreciation are more necessary than physical beauty and wit; that a restful and homey atmosphere is more to be desired than the very latest mode in furniture in the home. That true comradeship and a sporting spirit is preferable to a swanky motor and ritzy friends, then you are on the way to making a success of the "great venture" of matrimony.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 19 and have been going with a boy 22. He is a steady worker and would be a good provider and a wonderful husband. But, my folks object because his folks are not well thought of and my relatives refuse to have anything to do with him. He goes on talking and planning on marrying although I say nothing definite about it. I can't bear to think of breaking up, and he says if we did he would never stay here. If I knew positively that I would never love anyone more than him I would be willing to marry in spite of objections. But I realize what a big proposition marriage is, so I have looked at the problem from every angle and found no solution. If you'll be so kind as to let me know your decision in a case like this I'll be more than glad.

"UNDECIDED."
The trouble is, dear, no one can decide for you. There is no use telling you that families don't count after you're married, because they do. The "in-laws" on both sides enter largely into the lives of married couples. But it does seem as if this young man is worthy, the more so that his people have not been examples of rectitude. You will have to fight for him with your own people, but if you really love him you will probably win out in the end because they will recognize his worth. Don't marry him if you have any doubt about your love, however, wait awhile, for it is better to "ruin his life," as you say, now, than to give him an unhappy, dissatisfied wife.

ANXIOUS AND BLONDE: Your problem is the same. If the young men in question wish to renew the correspondence they will ask to write. Put them out of your minds, girls.

BILLIE: Why not ask the boy to call at your home sometime, Billie. He may have his doubts about the genuineness of your excuse in breaking the date, and that will make him realize you want his company.

MARY ANN: These girl friends who try to "vamp" every boy friend one has are pests, Mary Ann. You can't swat them as you do the fly, and very often they are charming except for this one failing of making eyes at every male thing that happens across their path. The only way to rid yourself of such a one is to fight her with her own weapons—if you consider it worth while.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 16 and in love with a young man of 18. We go out three times and sometimes four times a week. Is that all right? He told me of his love and asked me to be his girl. I promised. He says he loves me and he knows I love him, yet I can't tell whether he DOES love me or not? How can I find out? He kisses and is always fooling with my girl friends. Why does he do that? His family do not care for me. My family think I am lovely. Do you think it is wrong to let him kiss me?"

"ANXIOUS ANNE."
How do you get your studying done if you go out three or four times a week? However, the part of it is up to you. Spend as much of his time with you as you would lead one to think he cared. He certainly would not if he did not—so if you get what I mean—so why worry about that? Some boys—and men—just naturally act silly around girls and women. They can't seem to help it, so just call upon your pride and act as if you didn't care. "Just a little kiss here and there and his girl get too wrong, but don't let him get too mushy, especially as he seems such a born kisser."

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WHEN A LOON SENDS AN SOS

By this time all the young Geese had stopped their whimperings—their fright turned to curiosity—and were staring at the approaching stranger, and Peter, happening to glance at Father Gander and Mrs. Wild Goose and the other grown-up members of the Wild Goose flock, noticed that they were smiling.

Father Wild Gander caught the boy's eyes and winked at him, then turned to Tommy Gosling, who had stepped a few paces away from his mother's side and was trying to speak.

"Well, son, what is it now?" said Father Gander. "You do not seem as much afraid as you did a moment or so ago. Have you guessed who the stranger is?"

"No! I don't think so! Yes I have!" Tommy Gosling contradicted himself twice and then he did a daring thing—he stepped toward the newcomer.

Hello Loon, said he. "How are you this evening?"

"Fine, young Goose," replied Loon for Loon indeed it was. "I would never do for me to be anything else at twilight. I should miss too much fun!" The fellow gave another of the wild laughs that had so startled Peter and the sound any better, either. It made him feel a little cross.

Peter forgot that Loon was not talking to him at all, but to the fellow quack and spoke to the fellow quite as though he had known him for a long, long while.

"Why do you laugh like that?" said Peter sharply. "Can't you make a little less noise and have just as good a time? That screech of yours doesn't sound a bit as though you were amused. Any one to hear you would think you were crazy."

"Being a Loon, who knows but what I am?" replied the stranger, who, whatever other faults he may have had, was certainly not bad-tempered, for he winked at the boy as he spoke.

"If you think my laugh is queer, though, you ought to hear my call. There are hundreds of birds in these woods, yet I'll bet you a silver fish not a one of them all can make a noise like it."

"That is why, no matter how far away he may be, if a Loon gets into trouble and calls for help the rest of his family will stop whatever they may be doing—drop a fish right out of their mouths if necessary—and wing their way straight to his side. There is no danger of their not knowing which way to go. All he has to do is keep right on sending out the cry."

S. C. S. and they follow the cry, that could only come from the throat of a Loon, to its source to help him."

Next: "A Lad, a Laugh and a Loon."

THE BRINGER OF GOOD TIDINGS—Behold upon the mountains the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace!—Nahum 1:15.

GLORY IN DISCOVERY

There is nothing impossible about the idea advanced by Meade Minnigerode that French fishermen visited the Newfoundland banks one hundred years before Columbus reached San Salvador, but kept their knowledge of the fishing grounds secret because of the rivalry which existed between themselves and English competitors. Stories to that effect have been in circulation for a long time in the form of more or less vague reports, and if the documents Mr. Minnigerode has recently found in France really substantiate those accounts, they will provide one more proof of the danger of throwing overboard legend, on the ground that it is pure action. More and more, as men delve into the past, it is becoming evident that legend and myth quite often are founded on substantial fact.

As to any effect upon the glory of Columbus, caused by authentication of prior discoveries by wandering French fishermen, it should be nil. That glory does not exist primarily on priority, else it would have been destroyed long ago by records of the voyages of the Northmen and of the Chinese, and by numerous evidences of invasions from north Asia and from Malaysia. The fact remains and always will remain that Christopher Columbus opened up the Americas to the civilized world.

AN OPTIMIST IN INDUSTRY

One of the most optimistic exponents of the new order in business and industry is Mr. Edward A. Filene, well-known Boston merchant. In the May issue of the Atlantic Monthly, Mr. Filene explains why he feels that modern mass production and distribution methods hold out more hope for the average man than any system that has gone before.

"If mass production," he writes, "is used by leaders who understand that in order to make the greatest total profits they must pay even higher wages, constantly reduce prices and keep profits per unit of output down to the very minimum, mass production holds no dangers to the common welfare but on the contrary holds possibilities of accomplishing for mankind all of the good that theoretical reformers or irrational radicals hope to secure by revolutionary means."

CHOKING OFF DISCUSSION

It is difficult to agree with the action of the University of Pittsburgh authorities in preventing the student Liberal Club from holding a meeting to discuss the Mooney-Billings case.

Mooney and Billings are the central figures in one of the most unusual criminal cases in America's legal history. They have been in prison for 13 years and each year it becomes more and more apparent that they are being kept there unjustly. To date, however, they have not been able to gain their release.

Now if this is not a proper subject for discussion by college men, what, in the name of sanity, is? To assemble a group of young men for the purpose of getting a complete education and then forbid them to talk about one of the leading issues of the day is a policy that the university authorities may find rather hard to defend.

Your BROADWAY
By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK, May 4.—An interesting commentary on Boston music lovers concerns Heifetz, who was urged to serve as a guest player with the Boston Symphony crew. He asked for $5,000, but it was just as much of an honor to play with him as he agreed to do it for $1,000, which, by the way, he turned over to a charity.

His appearance brought a roof-lifting ovation and his solo was cheered. Later, in the green room, over 100 Boston music devotees collected to fawn on him, but when they recognized Mrs. Heifetz (Florence Vidor, the movie star the very great violinist and the classics were forgotten.

SHOW SHO' TALK

Two old-timers were gabbing about the theater at the Players' club, according to Leon Errol. "I wonder," queried one of the veteran actors, "where the good old time and twenty and thirty has gone to?" "It's gone up to $3.85," was the bitter retort.

HAW!

The belly-laugh of a recent New Yorker was in Alex Woolcott's summary of dramatic criticism which have been barred by theater managers. Woolcott related the incident in a small New England town concerning a critic who was barred by the local theater impresario. New plays came so infrequently that the critic had to take a daytime job at his other specialty, which was plumbing.

So, when his critical duties were blocked, it was but the work of a moment to brandish his union card, call out the stage hands and close the theater!

HOW IRKSOME

They say that during the Helen Morgan trial the justice was dining with an attorney friend, who said: "Do you realize that this young night club hostess gets three times the salary of a Supreme Court judge?"

"Wait a minute!" was his retort. "Don't rub it in!"

OBSERVATION

Broadway is now cluttered up with troupers who saved money all year so they could stay away from New York this summer.

IN FEWER WORDS

To hear George Jean Nathan argue it, it is a favorite challenge of the average Broadway playwright to the dramatic critic that if the latter knows so much about plays, why doesn't he write one himself. The same question might be asked of the average Broadway playwright.

TEE-HEE

The Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune, for April 18, has just arrived at this desk, and among other diverting scoops is this one from a lecture by St. John Ervine: "I saw more drunken women in New York in several months than I saw in England in seven years, and just before the war, thirty-one men were found dead on Broadway."

Hit me again. I can still hear him!

The Way
of the
World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

A Captain of Industry

Irving T. Bush is a man you would like. Recently I visited him in his beautiful quarters at the top of the Bush Tower on Forty-second street, New York. Said I: "I have always wanted to know a conspicuously successful American who was not born in a long cabin and who sold papers. I have heard that you were born well-to-do, and have succeeded in spite of that. How can one succeed without handicaps to overcome?"

"Well, the silver spoon may be as great a handicap as poverty," said Irving Bush. "Poverty often proves a stimulus to the young man, and gives him that self-reliance that it is so hard for a rich boy to acquire. There must be a struggle to develop the personality and powers of the young man. The struggle against the limitations imposed by poverty often is the making of the youngster. But I had my struggle, too."

Then he told me how the responsibility for management of the family fortune fell upon him early, when his father died. It was a heavy responsibility, and involved the development of much self-reliance and initiative.

Mr. Bush is about sixty years old, but looks younger. He is very tall. His appearance is distinguished and his manner is modest. I forced him to talk about himself, but he did it with a becoming diffidence.

He wore a quiet gray suit. His office is one of the most impressive rooms in the empire of business. Its windows look out and down upon a babel of mid-Manhattan, but the room, thirty stories above the street, is pervaded by a quietness that is given its tone by the soft light that comes through ancient bits of stained glass, set in Gothic window frames.

Mr. Bush is master of the Bush Terminal, one of the largest enterprises in New York. He takes an active interest in directing his business, and I have the impression that he is destined to be one of the greatest figures in world commerce. I feel sure that he will do much greater things during the next ten years than he has done during the rest of his life. He is the kind of man who is not satisfied with the mere accumulation of great wealth. Achievement lures him on.

I believe thoroughly that to be born to the possession of a comfortable fortune is a great handicap to a career. With very few exceptions, our eminent Americans were born poor. They become eminent because of the character formed in the heat of the struggle with poverty. An American who is really somebody despite the handicap of the silver spoon is entitled to great credit and respect. In my mind Irving T. Bush stands out as that kind of a personality. He has done big things, used a creative imagination, and remained modest and unassuming what I take of my hat to him. I offer him as inspiration to young Americans who are struggling against handicaps—especially the handicap of inherited wealth.

Who's Who and

WORLD'S GOLD RESERVE
SUGGESTED

By LOUIS T. McFADDEN
Congressman from Pennsylvania
Louis T. McFadden was born at Troy, Pa., July 25, 1856. He was educated in the public schools of that city and a commercial college. Beginning as an office boy in the First National bank at Canton, Pa., at the age of 16, he gradually rose to the office of president in 1915. He was elected to congress in 1915 and has been re-elected every term since, from the 15th district. He is a Republican.

An international bank, handling debt settlements and payments, governmental, trade and financial transactions, and designed to lead to a central management of the world's gold reserve, might be of great value if it could be safeguarded properly.

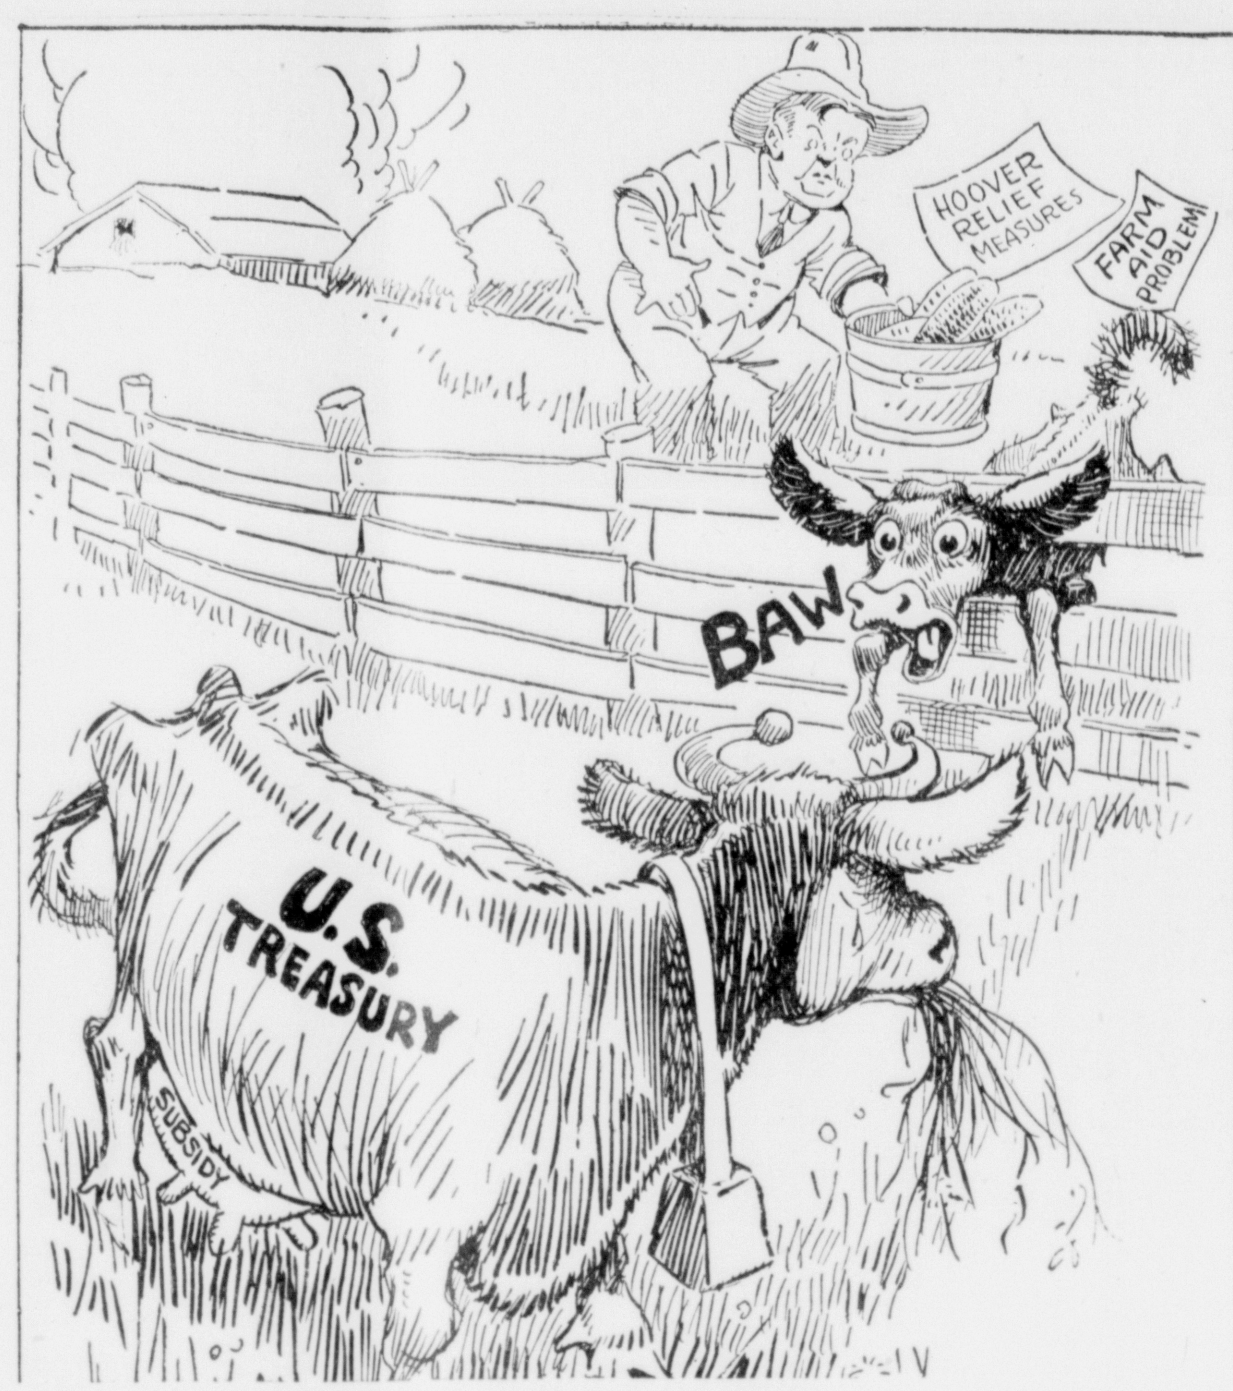

The proposed bank could be of great service as a shock absorber, enabling greater price stabilization and better equilibrium between countries, but such an institution should not determine interest or discount rates and should avoid becoming a super-bank with centralized control.

The principal function of the federal reserve system should be to maintain a proper gold reserve and adjust volume of currency and credit to business needs. It should not become involved in the control of speculation. Banks generally should carry on directly their acceptance of market business, with recourse to the federal reserve system only in emergency.

The increasing use of investment securities in the federal reserve system, is causing concern but I believe that some of the dangers in the situation are modified by the maintenance of an active and increasing market and the quick turnover in this class of securities.

The prominent position into which the world's gold reserves, the United States, economically and financially, has developed an improved banking system now is custodian of more than 40 percent of the world's available gold reserves.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NINA HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Beauty is features is not so important—it is rather the general effect of beauty that counts—the ensemble impression that loveliness in many small ways can give. A woman may have a clear skin, beautiful, healthy hair, a good straight figure and the right clothes and make-up, and if she combines these with grooming the next ten years than he has done during the rest of his life.

He is the kind of man who is not satisfied with the mere accumulation of great wealth. Achievement lures him on.

I believe thoroughly that to be born to the possession of a comfortable fortune is a great handicap to a career. With very few exceptions, our eminent Americans were born poor. They become eminent because of the character formed in the heat of the struggle with poverty. An American who is really somebody despite the handicap of the silver spoon is entitled to great credit and respect. In my mind Irving T. Bush stands out as that kind of a personality. He has done big things, used a creative imagination, and remained modest and unassuming what I take of my hat to him. I offer him as inspiration to young Americans who are struggling against handicaps—especially the handicap of inherited wealth.

Of course a lovely complexion is the first requirement of beauty—and a truly lovely complexion is first of all, a healthy one. Furthermore, the attractiveness of hair, eyes and figure are likewise based on health and good care—so that by assuring the fundamental good health of the whole body, the health and good looks of all these members follow quite naturally, and the woman who can put and keep herself in perfect physical condition in the course of beauty will be killing two birds with one stone.

I cannot see why more women do not prefer a healthy, active way of living—the way that leads to a beauty—rather than an inactive, lazy, careless way. It is not only happier for their good looks, but so much happier for their complete sense of well being.

The woman, for example, who exercises regularly and vigorously, who eats lightly of the wholesome, simple foods, who drinks plenty of water, sleeps eight hours a night; or more if she is very tired, does not feel weary and listless and discouraged as her less sensible neighbors so often do. She is brimful of "pep" and eager to go on with life, to accomplish all sorts of interesting things, to taste joys to the full.

If added to her radiant health, she takes simple, effective care of her looks—brushes her hair frequently, massages the scalp faithfully before her shampoo, and shampoos it properly; cleanses and stimulates and tones her skin daily with the preparations suited to its condition; bathes her eyes with an eye cup and eye wash daily, nourishes the delicate skin about them with a rich nourishing cream; if she makes up becomingly, using harmonious, blending shades of powder, rouge and lipstick—shades that were chosen because they suit her individuality; if she dresses to her type in the most becoming colors and lines that fashion has to offer, she will be a most attractive woman.

Does all that sound hard to you? It isn't. It is merely an enumeration of the very things that you all who or mean to do regularly. The difference between you and your own ideal of beauty is the difference between the results of the haphazard care you now take and the results of that same care taken more conscientiously and faithfully.

What you need to develop is purpose—and the will to carry it out. If you can develop them, you will be able to demand of yourself and for yourself the good looks that will create for you an ensemble effect of beauty.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, finds no fault with the position occupied by Chief Justice William Howard Taft of the United States supreme court.

Even for an ex-president, the senator considers the federal judiciary a dignified, useful, adequately salaried post.

Calvin Coolidge is supposed to have retired with savings approximately $400,000, which Senator Fess recognizes as enough to keep him in good ex-presidential style. So it is not altogether from anxiety concerning the average ex-president's ability to take care of himself that the Ohioan urges a constitutional amendment placing life seats in the senate at the disposal of America's former White House tenants.

"It is rather," explains the senator, "because an ex-president still has so much to give to the country than because the country is able to offer a great more to him that I favor retaining him in the public service."

"No other man can possibly acquire a training in national affairs equal to a president's."

The senate is a thorough school. It involves a study of many problems, and numerous and varied trials of the major countries in the necessary management of the world's gold reserves, which has resulted in a deference to the banking authorities, principally because of the fact that our federal reserve system now is custodian of more than 40 percent of the world's available gold reserves.

contracts, but no a tithe of the chief executive's. Every hour in the day he is absorbed in the consideration of vital questions. For a considerable time of years he must weigh them constantly. His course of instruction is the most intensive of any in the government.

"Following his retirement, obviously the counsel he is equipped to furnish, out of this wealth of experience, is priceless valuable."

"It seems to me that it can be given to best advantage in the senate."

"True, an ex-president can write independently, as a private citizen. Col. Roosevelt did so. Ex-President Taft was a contributor to the press before his appointment to the supreme bench. Ex-President Coolidge has appeared in print."

"However, such utterances lack the authority of expressions on the senate floor. Their value, in each case, to a single publication. And after all, they must be written to sell—and shaped accordingly."

"I do not especially argue," said the Buckeye statesman, "for senate votes for ex-presidents. Perhaps a more satisfactory status for them would be something like that of our territorial delegates."

"I have in mind more the value of their advice than of their ballots. To give them the latter would require also an additional constitutional change."

As remarked, Senator Fess is thinking primarily of saving ex-presidents for the country; not so much of providing for ex-presidents.

"Yet that sometimes is a consideration, too," he added.

"Thomas Jefferson died land poor. His library had to be sold, due to sheer lack of ready money."

"James Madison's circumstances also were so straitened that, after his death, it was necessary to sell his letters to aid his widow."

"John Quincy Adams' account of the actual penury which marked James Monroe's latter years is absolutely pitiful."

"In my judgment it is not in keeping with our republic's dignity that a man who has risen to its highest office should ever be permitted to end his life in literal poverty."

Senator Fess' proposal amendment has not been formally introduced in congress yet; only suggested by him.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

"Spots" on the Lungs

"Will you kindly advise me if spots on the lungs can be permanently cured? Would gaining in weight be an indication of an upward step? Since I know I have these spots, I dread the future, and although now there is but a slight cough, the dread of an awful cough, etc., is always on my mind, and it seems to me that death would be better in the beginning. I have always dreaded this disease, and always prayed that I be exempt from it, and now I have it. Would you advise the mountains or the seashore for a vacation, and do you think a change in climate would benefit me? Is marriage impossible?"

"K."

Certainly "spots" on the lungs can be cured, K. The fact of the matter is, probably all of us at some time have had these little fected spots and never have known about them, having had enough resistance to have Nature has walled them off and in most instances killed the infection. You didn't say whether you had a diagnosis made of tuberculosis or not. If you have had, then you must have some symptoms—temperature, weakness, etc. The slight cough alone wouldn't be diagnostic of the disease, unless you raised a sputum which had the tuberculosis bacilli in it.

It's a good thing to have a wholesome dread of any disease. When Job said, "The thing I fear has come upon me," he started something. For he made a lot of uninformed people believe that fear alone could bring on a disease. That isn't true; only to the extent that if it is abnormal, the anxiety causes a lack of sleep and appetite and so lowers the resistance.

As far as marriage is concerned, the authorities state it should not be entered into until the disease has been arrested and gives no symptoms for two years. If you have tuberculosis, you should be under the care of a competent physician. He will advise you if you need a change of climate. Tuberculosis can be cured in any climate, but, of course, a climate where one can be out of doors day and night is most favorable.

Now don't worry! Tuberculosis is curable. Hundreds of thousands of people have had it and have been cured. But it means that you must co-operate with your physician and so regulate your life that Nature can do the work. We have a list on the subject which goes into the diet, etc., and gives a list of books written for the layman by authorities.

Mrs. L.—There are no lotions or bath compositions, or soaps or salves that will reduce any fat, in spots or generalized.

Massage, persistently applied over a long period of time, will help the fat spots. There are such things as tannins made of fat. These shouldn't be massaged, but removed surgically. Don't mind if your face does look thin while reducing, for it will plump up after you get back to your maintenance diet.

If you have heart trouble, as you say, you should be under the care of a physician and he will direct your reducing. There's no doubt he will expect you to reduce, for a disabled heart has troubles enough without having to pump through extra layers of fat and to contend with the effects of an unbalanced diet otherwise.

You need instructions on how to reduce, and I suggest you send for our pamphlet on the subject.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A sense of values and balance is as necessary to success in matrimony as it is in business. If you can be made to realize that mutual understanding and appreciation are more necessary than physical beauty and wit; that a restful and homey atmosphere is more to be desired than the very latest mode in furniture in the home. That true comradeship and a sporting spirit is preferable to a swanky motor and ritzy friends, then you are on the way to making a success of the "great venture" of matrimony.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 19 and have been going with a boy 22. He is a steady worker and would be a good provider and a wonderful husband. But my folks object because his folks are not well thought of and my relatives refuse to have anything to do with him. He goes on talking and planning on marrying although I say nothing definite about it. I can't bear to think of breaking up, and he says if we did he would never stay here. If I knew positively that I would never love anyone more than him I would be willing to marry in spite of objections. But I realize what a big proposition marriage is, so I have looked at the problem from every angle and found no solution. If you'll be so kind as to let me know your decision in a case like this I'll be more than glad."

"UNDECIDED."

The trouble is, dear, no one can decide for you. There is no telling you that families don't count after you're married, because they do. The "in-laws" on both sides enter largely into the lives of married couples. But it does seem as if this young man is worthy, the more so that his people have not been examples of rectitude. You will have to fight for him with your own people, but if you really love him you will probably win in the end and they will recognize his worth. Don't marry him if you have any doubts about your love, however, wait awhile, for it is better to "ruin his life," as you say, now than to give him an unhappy, dissatisfied wife.

ANXIOUS AND BLONDE: Your problem is the same. If the young men in question wish to renew the correspondence they will ask to write. Put them out of your minds, girls.

BILLIE: Why not ask the boy to call at your home sometime, Billie. He may have his doubts about the genuineness of your excuse in breaking the date, and that will make him realize you want his company.

MARY ANN: These girl friends who try to "vamp" every boy friend one has are pests, Mary Ann. You can't swat them as you do the fly, and very often they are charming except for this one failing of making eyes at ever-male thing that happens across their path. The only way to rid yourself of such a one is to fight her with her own weapons—if you consider it worth while.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 16 and in love with a young man of 18. We go out three times and sometimes four times a week. Is that all right? He told me of his love and asked me to be his girl. I promised. He says he loves me and he knows I love him, yet I can't tell whether he DOES love me or not? How can I find out? He kisses and is always fooling with my girl friends. Why does he do that? His family do not care for me. My family think he is lovely. Do you think it is wrong to let him kiss me?"

"ANXIOUS ANNE."

How do you get your studying done if you go out three or four times a week? However, that part of it is up to your mother. Spending so much of his time with you would lead one to think he cared. He certainly would not if he did not—if you get what I mean—so why worry about that? Some boys—and men—just naturally act silly around girls and women. They can't seem to help it, so just call upon your pride and act as if you didn't care. "Just a little kiss between a fellow and his girl" isn't wrong, but don't let him get too mushy, especially as he seems such a born kisser.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

WHEN A LOON SENDS AN SOS

By this time all the young Geese had stopped their whimpering—their fright turned to curiosity—and were staring at the approaching stranger, and Peter, appearing to glance at Father Gander and Mrs. Wild Goose and the other grown-up members of the Wild Goose flock, noticed that they were smiling.

Father Wild Gander caught the boy's eyes and winked at him, then turned to Tommy Gosling, who had stepped a few paces away from his mother's side and was trying to speak.

"Well, son, what is it now?" said Father Gander. "You do not seem as much afraid as you did a moment or so ago. Have you guessed who the stranger is?"

"No! I don't think so! Yes I have!" Tommy Gosling contradicted himself twice, and then he did a daring thing—he stepped toward the newcomer.

Hello, Loon," said he. "How are you this evening?"

"Fine, young Goose," replied Loon for Loon indeed it was. "It would never do for me to be anything else at tonight. I should miss too much fun!" The fellow gave another of the wild laughs that had so startled Peter and the Goslings.

Peter now knew just what that weird noise was and who had made it, but in spite of this, he still laughed made him tingle all over just as it had the first time he heard it. He did not like the sound any better, either. It made him feel a little cross.

Peter forgot that Loon was not talking to him at all, but to the fellow, and spoke to him as if he were a long, long while.

"Why do you laugh like that?" said Peter sharply. "Can't you make a little less noise and have just as good a time? That screech of yours doesn't sound a bit as though you were amused. Any one to hear you would think you were crazy!"

"Being a Loon, who knows but what I am?" replied the stranger, who, whatever other faults he may have had, was certainly not bad-tempered, for he winked at the boy as he spoke.

"If you think my laugh is queer, though you ought to hear my call. There are hundreds of birds in these woods, yet I'll bet you a silver fish not a one of them all can make a noise like it."

"That is why, no matter how far away he may be, if a Loon gets into trouble and calls for help the rest of his family will stop whatever they may be doing—drop a fish right out of their mouths if necessary—and wing their way straight to his side. There is no danger of their not knowing which way to go. All he has to do is keep right on sending out the S. G. S. and they follow the cry."

"That's only a story from the throat of a Loon, to its source to keep the family well together."

Next: "A Lad, a Laugh and a Loon."

Interest in billiard play in Xenia which has apparently fallen off in recent years, is expected to be revived as a result of the scheduled visit of Willie Hoppe, holder of the world's 18-1 balkline crown, at the Recreation Billiard Parlor Friday night.

Hoppe is nearing the end of a barnstorming tour during which he has been playing exhibition matches in many cities. The champion comes to Xenia directly from Huntington, W. Va., and from here will go to Detroit for scheduled matches.

Hoppe's exhibition here is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock and will last about an hour.

Willie was formerly holder of the 18-2 balkline title for many years but was defeated in 1925 by Jake Schaefer. Lately he has been knocking at the three-cushion championship door but his game has not yet acquired the necessary consistency.

Fidel La Barba, soft-spoken, pleasant-mannered little Californian, who is best known as a weight champion of the world from 1925 until his retirement, undefeated, in 1927, is home from Australia, where he achieved an enviable record of victories.

A full-fledged bantam since his return to the ring, La Barba is now the outstanding contender for the 118-pound championship. Many people have an idea that he will win his second title if he keeps on fighting.

Fidel retired to enter Leland Stanford University, with the intention of taking up medicine as a profession. He returned to the ring to win recognition by a national consensus of boxing writers as the foremost bantam. Last fall he defeated Bushy Graham of Utica and Young Nationalista of the Philippines, and more recently he won impressive victories in Australia. His last success was a twelve-round knockout of Willie Smith of South Africa at Sydney, a week before he sailed for home the latter part of March.

La Barba, most fans believe, would be a worthy champion, and few stand in his way.

WILLIE HOPPE, BILLIARD CHAMP, WILL GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Local billiard fans will be afforded a rare treat Friday night at 8:30 o'clock at the Recreation Billiard Parlor when Willie Hoppe, world's champion 18-1 balk-line billiard player, and holder of the 18-2 title for sixteen years will appear in exhibition games at balk-line and three-cushion billiards.

Hoppe began playing billiards when only six years old, using a box or bench to stand on in order to make his shots. When only 18, Hoppe went to France and played in the Grand Hotel in Paris, against Maurice Vigneaux, the "Old Lion" and champion of the world at 18-1 and 18-2 balk-line.

The match was for the 18-1 championship, and Hoppe won 500 to 323. Recently at Philadelphia, Hoppe defeated Otto Reisel, one of the leading three-cushion players, 200 to 152 in 155 innings, and at New York City the veteran easily won from Kinsey Matsuyama, the sensational Japanese star, 3,523 to 2,122 at 18-1 balk-line. In this match Hoppe established a new record high run of 296 unfinished.

JACK REID PRAISES TROTTER IN XENIA TRAINER'S STABLE

Jack Reid, sport scribe, believes that Missing Wonder, the sensational trotter being trained by Joe Hagler, Xenia trainer, is due for another satisfactory season. He says:

Joe Hagler, the popular Xenia reinsman, is training twelve head. The star of the stable is the trotter, Missing Wonder, 2:08 3/4. Hagler dommed this fellow with the half-hopples in 1927 and he proved one of the sensations of the two rounds. Last year he was injured in the first shipment and Hagler did not get to race him.

He seems to be over his injury, looks good and is taking his preparation this spring in fine shape. Hagler thinks he has in Jane Evans, the best two-year-old trotter it was ever his pleasure to train. The only other trotter in his string is a four year old by Count Dashoff. The pacer, Joan Direct, has won several times last fall and raced a few times this year in grand form and Joe expects this wiggler to be a real bread winner this year.

Other sideliners he is training are a three year old by Binville, a three-year-old full brother to Joan Direct, a two-year-old by Peter Henley, Jona Watts (2), 2:17 1/4, and a two-year-old by Peter Hanley, dam Frances D. The last two are owned by J. W. Faulkner, who formerly owned and raced Silver Pointer. Hagler has had the first named colt by Peter Hanley just twenty-nine days. He was not broken even to lead when he arrived at the track and last week he paced an eighth in 22 1/4 seconds.

REO FLYING CLOUDS DEFEAT JAMESTOWN INDEPENDENTS 9-3

Scoring six runs after two were out in the sixth inning, the Reo Flying Clouds, Dayton baseball nine defeated the Jamestown Independents 9 to 3 in the season's opener on the Jamestown diamond Sunday afternoon.

Evans, on the mound for Jamestown, blanked the visitors for five rounds, but weakened in the sixth. He had one other bad inning, the eighth, when the Dayton nine added three more runs. Evans pitched himself out of several other tight places and was accorded good support at times.

Dayton chased six runs across the plate in the sixth on four hits, a walk and two costly errors. Jamestown tallied one run in the first inning and this looked sufficient until the fatal sixth.

Schneider, first baseman, did the heavy hitting for Dayton, poking out three safeties. Evans made two hits for Jamestown. Jamestown's next game is with the Moraine Truckers Club of Dayton next Sunday afternoon at Jamestown. Score by innings:

Dayton..... 000 060 030—9 13 5
Jamestown 100 002 000—3 8 3

PHILLIES NOT SOFT FOR CHICAGO CUBS; ROBINS BEAT REDS

Yesterday's hero—Pinky Whitney, Phillies' third baseman, who singled with the bases filled in the ninth inning, giving Philadelphia a 2 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Claude Willoughby, star Phillies' right-hander who was knocked out of the box by the Cubs Saturday, held the Chicago clouters to five hits. Sheriff Blake allowed the Phils but four hits.

Steve Sweetonic, Pittsburgh rookie, had the better of Percy Jones in a mound duel and the Pirates beat the Braves, 4 to 3. Both teams scored two runs in the ninth. The Waner brothers starred at bat and in the field.

Only home runs counted at the Polo Grounds and the New York Giants broke their losing streak by hitting three circuit clouts and defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 1. Terry, Jackson and Pulis accounted for the Giants three runs with homers and Wilson hit one for the Cards.

Collecting fifteen hits and stealing six bases, Brooklyn beat Cincinnati, 12 to 3. Five Cincinnati errors also aided the Robins. Bill Clark went the route for the Robins, pitching well behind a safe line.

Bob Meusel's home run with the bases filled in the tenth inning gave the New York Yankees their third straight victory over the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 6. The White Sox staged a three-run rally in their half of the tenth but were stopped by Waite Hoyt who pitched a shutout.

Harry Heilmann's hitting feat—Detroit's third straight win over the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 4. The veteran outfielder hit two home runs and batted in five runs. Carroll pitched his first complete game of the season for the Tigers.

Ten runs in the fifth inning enabled the Washington Senators to beat the Cleveland Indians 13 to 5. Braxton held the Indians to five hits until the ninth when he eased up and permitted the tribe to make three hits and three runs. Goslin hit a homer in the ninth.

RAIN POSTPONES SOFTBALL OPENER

Disappointing a large number of fans, a steady drizzle all day Monday caused postponement of the opening softball game in the American League between The Hooven and Allison Co. and Post Office nine Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The weather cleared Tuesday and there were favorable indications that the local softball season would be inaugurated Tuesday night at 6:30 when Harness Cigar Store and The Downtown Country Club are scheduled to meet in the opener in the National League.

Harness won the city title last year and the D. T. C. Club won the championship the preceding year.

Monday's postponed game will probably be played off Friday night this week as Friday nights of each week will be left open this year for playing off postponed games.

A COLD—BACKACHE—RELIEF
J. C. Diamond, Cleveland, Ohio, caught a cold, which settled in his kidneys. "It gave me great pain. I could not straighten up; it hindered my work; my nights were miserable and sleepless. In my daily paper, I saw an advertisement of Foley's Kidney Pills, so I bought a bottle and took them with the most satisfactory results. Pains disappeared, clearance became normal; I slept soundly again." Men and women everywhere use and recommend them. Satisfaction guaranteed. Sold Everywhere.—Adv.

Interest in billiard play in Xenia which has apparently fallen off in recent years, is expected to be revived as a result of the scheduled visit of Willie Hoppe, holder of the world's 18-1 ball-line crown, at the Recreation Billiard Parlor Friday night.

Hoppe is nearing the end of a barnstorming tour during which he has been playing exhibition matches in many cities. The champion comes to Xenia directly from Huntington, W. Va., and from here will go to Detroit for scheduled matches.

Hoppe's exhibition here is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock and will last about an hour. Willie was formerly holder of the 18-1 ball-line title for many years but was dethroned in 1925 by Jake Schaefer. Lately he has been knocking at the three-cushion championship door but his game has not yet acquired the necessary consistency.

Fidel La Barba, soft-spoken, pleasant-mannered little Californian, who is best known as fly-weight champion of the world from 1925 until his retirement, undefeated, in 1927, is home from Australia, where he achieved an enviable record of victories.

A full-fledged bantam since his return to the ring, La Barba is now the outstanding contender for the 118-pound championship. Many people have an idea that he will win his second title if he keeps on fighting.

Fidel retired to enter Leland Stanford University, with the intention of taking up medicine as a profession. He returned to the ring to win recognition by a national consensus of boxing writers as the foremost bantam. Last fall he defeated Bushy Graham of Utica and Young Nationalista of the Philippines, and more recently he scored impressive victories in Australia. His last success was a twelve-round knockout of Willie Smith of South Africa at Sydney, a week before he sailed for home the latter part of March.

La Barba, most fans believe, would be a worthy champion, and few stand in his way.

JOHNSON IS ILL
WASHINGTON, May 7.—Walter Johnson, manager of the Washington Senators, has been forced to leave his club because of a recurrence of a kidney infection which put him out of the game for several months last year. He left the Senators in Cleveland last night to return home for treatment.

WILLIE HOPPE, BILLIARD CHAMP, WILL GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Local billiard fans will be afforded a rare treat Friday night at 8:30 o'clock at the Recreation Billiard Parlor when Willie Hoppe, world's champion 18-1 ball-line player, and holder of the 18-2 title for sixteen years will appear in exhibition games at ball-line and three-cushion billiards.

Hoppe began playing billiards when only six years old, using a box or bench to stand on in order to make his shots. When only 18, Hoppe went to France and played in the Grand Hotel in Paris, against Maurice Vignaux, the "Old Lion" and champion of the world at 18-1 and 18-2 ball-line.

Recently at Philadelphia, Hoppe defeated Otto Reisel, one of the leading three-cushion players, 200 to 152 in 155 innings, and at New York City the veteran easily won from Kinsey Matsuyama, the sensational Japanese star, 3:23 to 2:12 at 18-1 ball-line. In this match Hoppe established a new record high run of 296 unfinished.

JACK REID PRAISES TROTTER IN XENIA TRAINER'S STABLE

Jack Reid, sport scribe, believes that Missing Wonder, the sensational trotter being trained by Joe Hagler, Xenia trainer, is due for another satisfactory season. He says: Joe Hagler, the popular Xenia trainer, is training twelve head. The star of the stable is the trotter, Missing Wonder, 2:08 3/4. Hagler donned this fellow with the half-hoppers in 1927 and he proved one of the sensations of the two rounds. Last year he was injured in the first shipment and Hagler did not get to race him.

He seems to be over his injury, looks good and is taking his preparation this spring in fine shape. Hagler thinks he has in Jane Evans, by Oliver Evans, dam Laura Lucille, the best two-year-old trotter it was ever his pleasure to train. The only other trotter in his string is a four year old by Count Dashoff. The pacer, Joan Direct, by Braden Direct which he raced a few times last fall and beat 2:11 several times is in grand form and Joe expects this wiggler to be a real bread winner this year. Other side-wheelers he is training are a three year old by Binville, a three-year-old full brother to Joan Direct, a two-year-old by Peter Henley, Jona Watts (2), 2:17 1/4, and a two-year-old by Peter Hanley, dam Frances D. The last two are owned by J. W. Faulkner, who formerly owned and raced Silver Pointer. Hagler has had the first named colt by Peter Hanley just twenty-nine days. He was not broken even to lead when he arrived at the track and last week he paced an eighth in 22 1/4 seconds.

REO FLYING CLOUDS DEFEAT JAMESTOWN INDEPENDENTS 9-3

Scoring six runs after two were out in the sixth inning, the Reo Flying Clouds, Dayton baseball nine defeated the Jamestown Independents 9 to 3 in the season's opener on the Jamestown diamond Sunday afternoon.

Evans, on the mound for Jamestown, blanked the visitors for five rounds, but wobbled in the sixth. He had one other bad inning, the eighth, when the Dayton nine added three more runs. Evans pitched himself out of several other tight places and was accorded good support at times.

Dayton chased six runs across the plate in the sixth on four hits, a walk and two costly errors.

Jamestown tallied one run in the first inning and this looked sufficient until the fatal sixth.

Schneider, first batter, did the heavy hitting for Dayton, poking out three safeties. Evans made two hits for Jamestown.

Jamestown's next game is with the Moraine Truckers Club of Dayton next Sunday afternoon at Jamestown. Score by innings:

Dayton 000 006 030-9 13 5
Jamestown 100 002 000-3 8 3
Batteries: Dayton—Johnson, McLean and Locke; Jamestown—Evans and Kiser.

PHILLIES NOT SOFT FOR CHICAGO CUBS; ROBINS BEAT REDS

Yesterday's hero—Pinky Whitney, Phillies' third baseman, who singled with the bases filled in the ninth inning, giving Philadelphia a 2 to 1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Claude Willoughby, star Phillies' right-hander who was knocked out of the box by the Cubs Saturday, held the Chicago clouters to five hits. Sheriff Blake allowed the Phils but four hits.

Steve Swetonic, Pittsburgh rookie, had the better of Percy Jones in a mound duel and the Pirates beat the Braves, 4 to 3. Both teams scored two runs in the ninth. The Waner brothers starred at bat and in the field.

Only home runs counted at the Polo Grounds and the New York Giants broke their losing streak by hitting three circuit clouts and defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 1. Terry, Jackson and Fullis accounted for the Giants three runs with homers and Wilson hit one for the Cards.

Collecting fifteen hits and stealing six bases, Brooklyn beat Cincinnati, 12 to 3. Five Cincinnati errors also aided the Robins. Bill Clark went the route for the Robins, pitching well behind a safe lead.

Bob Meusel's home run with the bases filled in the tenth inning gave the New York Yankees their third straight victory over the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 6. The White Sox staged a three-run rally in their half of the tenth but were stopped by Waite Hoyt with the winning runs on base.

Harry Hellmanson's hitting featured Detroit's third straight win over the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 4. The veteran outfielder hit two home runs and batted in five runs. Carroll pitched his first complete game of the season for the Tigers.

Ten runs in the fifth inning enabled the Washington Senators to beat the Cleveland Indians 13 to 5. Bratton held the Indians to five hits until the ninth when he eased up and permitted the tribe to make three hits and three runs. Goslin hit a homer in the ninth.

RAIN POSTPONES SOFTBALL OPENER

Disappointing a large number of fans, a steady drizzle all day Monday caused postponement of the opening softball game in the American League between The Hooven and Allison Co. and Post Office nine Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

The weather cleared Tuesday and there were favorable indications that the local softball season would be inaugurated Tuesday night at 6:30 when Harness Cigar Store and The Downtown Country Club are scheduled to meet in the opener in the National League.

Harness won the city title last year and the D. T. C. Club won the championship the preceding year.

Monday's postponed game will probably be played off Friday night this week as Friday nights of each week will be left open this year for playing off postponed games.

A COLD—BACKACHE—RELIEF
J. C. Damond, Cleveland, Ohio, caught a cold, which settled in his kidneys. "It gave me great pain. I could not straighten up; it hindered my work; my nights were miserable and sleepless. In my daily paper, I saw an advertisement of Foley Pilsa diuretic, so I bought a bottle and took them with the most satisfactory results. Pains disappeared, clearance became normal; I slept soundly again." Men and women everywhere use and recommend them. Satisfaction guaranteed. Sold Everywhere.

COURTS' QUEEN BOWS AT COURT

Because Queen Mary admired Helen Wills, California tennis star, when she saw her play on the courts at Wimbledon, the youthful player was included in the list of 16 American debutantes to be received at court. Because of the illness of King George, the queen chose to preside alone at the function, although the Prince of Wales is to escort her to the throne. Miss Wills has chosen for her court presentation an ivory satin ensemble which conforms to the dress regulations laid down by Queen Mary. The train extends 18 inches from her heels. The gown is longer in the back than in the front and the sides are quite long. Court etiquette also decrees that those to be presented must wear a headdress of two white plumes.

PRISONERS WORK ON COUNTY ROADS

CANTON, May 7. — Workhouse prisoners in nine squads have taken to the open with the arrival of spring in Stark County. Roads, the Stark County Hoys and Canton playgrounds have been assigned to the prisoners for repair and construction work.

MYSTERY PLAY WILL BE FINAL OFFERING OF THEATER GUILD

"In The Next Room," a mystery drama, has been selected as the next production of the Xenia Little Theatre Guild, it was announced Tuesday.

Try-outs for parts in the play, the last of the Guild's four productions this season, will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the Xenia Music and Dramatic Art Studio on the third floor of the Allen Bldg.

Guild members and others interested in taking part in the Guild performance are requested to attend the try-out meeting and offer their services to the casting committee. Since this is the last performance of the Guild's first season it is hoped that a large number will take advantage of the opportunity to take part in the May performance.

"In The Next Room" will be presented the latter part of May and will mark the close of the Guild's first season. The production will be under the direction of Miss Esther Muriel Smith whose capable work spelled success for the three preceding shows of the Guild this season.

The selection of a mystery story as the Guild's last performance follows a popular demand from Xenia patrons of the Guild shows and is in accordance with the general popularity of mystery shows and stories over the country. Broadway producers, the movies, books and magazines have suddenly devoted much attention to the mystery story and this type of story has proved exceptionally popular.

"In The Next Room" was a Broadway hit with a run of several weeks and has also been produced by the movies. It contains all the elements of suspense and love-interest.

LADIES!

Don't wave your hair daily—or even every week. Here's a way to keep it wavy for days at a time. BEFORE you use your iron, or curlers, DAMPEN the hair with DANDERINE. Just a few DROPS on comb or towel. Your locks will then behave for a MONTH! Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff; dissolves every speck, within five minutes of rubbing into the scalp. But as a wave-preserver on the hair itself, Danderine is a JOY. The best dressing in the world because it doesn't show. Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST

Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every druggist in America has it, for only 35c. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered, just try—

LAMAR BENNETT

LADIES!

Don't wave your hair daily—on every week. Here's a way to keep it wavy for days at a time. BEFORE you use your iron, or curlers, DAMPEN the hair with DANDERINE. Just a few DROPS on comb or towel. Your locks will then behave for a MONTH! Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff; dissolves every speck, within five minutes of rubbing into the scalp. But as a wave-preserver on the hair itself, Danderine is a JOY. The best dressing in the world because it doesn't show. Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST. Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every drugstore in America has it, for only 35c. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered, just try—

PRISONERS WORK ON COUNTY ROADS

CANTON, May 7. — Workhouse prisoners in nine squads have taken to the open with the arrival of spring in Stark County. Roads, the Stark County Hoop and Canton playgrounds have been assigned to the prisoners for repair and construction work. Because of the opportunity to get out in the open and the fact that they are given special rations the prisoners welcome the assignment to labor gangs, Superintendent Ralph A. Benson declared.

MYSTERY PLAY WILL BE FINAL OFFERING OF THEATER GUILD

"In The Next Room," a mystery drama, has been selected as the next production of the Xenia Little Theatre Guild, it was announced Tuesday.

Try-outs for parts in the play, the last of the Guild's four productions this season, will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the Xenia Music and Dramatic Art Studio on the third floor of the Allen Bldg.

Guild members and others interested in taking part in the Guild performance are requested to attend the try-out meeting and offer their services to the casting committee. Since this is the last performance of the Guild's first season it is hoped that a large number will take advantage of the opportunity to take part in the May performance.

"In The Next Room" will be presented the latter part of May and will mark the close of the Guild's first season. The production will be under the direction of Miss Esther Muriel Smith whose capable work spelled success for the three preceding shows of the Guild this season.

The selection of a mystery story as the Guild's last performance follows a popular demand from Xenia patrons of the Guild shows and is in accordance with the general popularity of mystery shows and stories over the country. Broadway producers, the movies, books and magazines have suddenly devoted much attention to the mystery story and this type of story has proved exceptionally popular.

"In The Next Room" was a Broadway hit with a run of several weeks and has also been produced by the elements of suspense and love-interest.

ANTQUATED Turkish Soldier Is Denied Extra Wife

King Zogu

Central Press Cable
TIRANA, Albania, May 7.—Mr. Mehmed Hazim, a stray ex-Turkish soldier from the Turco-Balkan war of 1913, thinks there is no liberty in Albania. As a minority of one he appealed to the Albanian authorities to respect his right to have more than one wife. In fact, he believes life is drab if a man cannot have a harem.

His case was brought to the attention of the authorities on other day when he filed an application to marry. It was disclosed that his first wife was a gypsy who had also strayed into the country just before the World War. His prospective wife also is of Turkish origin.

Must Keep Up With News

The ex-soldier could not be convinced that a Turk in Albania could not have his own way in family matters if what he did was not in any way clashing with native customs. Nevertheless, he was advised to follow the daily events closely, for in Turkey as well as in Albania, the institution of polygamy has been abolished.

Would-Be Bride Angry

Moreover, he was informed that polygamy is forbidden in Albania to all residents of the country, whether they be citizens or aliens. At once the young lady deserted the government premises, expressing indignation and scoffing at the married man.

She hinted, moreover, that the refusal would cause a feud. But since the government had a hand in this case, neither the feud nor polygamy had a ghost of a chance to thrive. King Zogu has the situation well in hand. And he enforces the laws of his country, especially those governing feuds and marriages, with an iron hand.

UNDERGROUND

By J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

The plot concerns some weird underground noises beneath a supposedly haunted house in Byford Moor. One day, Brown, a romantic young clerk, overhears a rough-looking man say to another: "After her! And if she's troublesome, don't be particular what you do to her!" Brown, and his companions, Rupert, Charlie, and a laborer named Ted, trail the girl to the house. Brown disappears in the haunted house. Simon Brill and the two rough-looking men are trailed by Rupert and Charlie, who are trying to find Brown.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV
"I seem to have been asleep," murmured Charlie. "How long is it since you left me?"
"About a quarter of an hour."
"And what has happened in that quarter of an hour?"
"A bit more's good for one, I should say," replied Ted, and his tone as well as his words woke Charlie up completely.
"Really?" frowned Charlie. "Well—what?"
"Dunno as 'ow it's easy to tell," said the laborer, scratching the stubble on his chin. "I ain't no good at this sort of thing. 'Arf wot I ears is double-dutch ter me, but I ears other things wot seems pretty plain."

"Leave out the double-dutch, and stick to the plain," suggested Charlie. "What did you hear that seemed plain?"
"Well, it was like this," answered Ted. "I goes back inter the place, see, and I orders another cup o' tea, and there at a table's wot tea, see, and I goes and sits near 'em, see."

"Believe me, I see," Charlie assured him impatiently. "Get on with it, man!"
"Well, that's wot I'm doing, ain't it?" retorted Ted. "I'm tellin' yer! I listens, and hevery now and then I ears a bit, and then again he speaks so low I don't ear nothin'. But it was clear as mud the old feller was givin' 'ot to the little feller fer not 'avin' done somethin' 'orterfer done. 'You bungled it, that's wot you don't, 'e ses. 'You bungled it. And then the other feller, 'e ses as 'ow the luck was again 'im, and 'e darn well won't, he bungles it nex' time, 'e ses. 'Well, this is the nex' time, 'e ses the old man, 'You stick around 'ere, and you see 'ow comes along, and if she comes along and gets inter the 'ouse—well, 'e ses, 'you see, 'don't bungles it this time. That's wot 'e ses."

"Sounds pretty rotten," replied Charlie. "I'll have to carry this to headquarters. Meanwhile, do you head like sticking round the pub, and keeping an eye on that little blackguard in the cheek suit?"
"That's jest wot I'm goin' ter do," responded Ted, definitely. "But I ain't finished yet. There's a bit more."

"Is there? Well, let's hear it. And be quick, because I want to get back."
"Well, I'm tellin' 'yer, quick as I can, ain't I? The other bit was 'abart wot the old feller was goin' ter do. 'Cos the other one asks 'im, 'Me' ses the old feller, and I ses, 'I'm smile sort of quiet like. 'Don't you worry about me,' 'e ses. 'I've got little job of my own on at the Moor View,' 'e ses, 'and you won't find me doin' no bunglin'." And then 'e give another o' them nasty quiet smiles of 'is, an' ses, 'It wouldn't surprise me, Pip, if somethin' very interstint' didn't happen along at Moor View. And if p'raps one o' them bedrooms there wasn't empty tonight!"

As Charlie hurried back to the Yellow Stag, his mind revolved around the new developments. The situation was definitely hardening, and it was also extending in area. Coomber House was still the central point, and it was obviously in Coomber House that the solution of the mystery lay, but another house, called Moor View, had suddenly become something, and claimed attention. Something was going to happen at Moor View—something that would render one of the bedrooms tenantless that night! What was this, Simon Brill was going to Simon Brill. Therefore, the watch on Simon Brill must be continued.

But Moor View was an addition to their troubles, not a substitution. The battle had broken out at another point, which was an embarrassing thing for a small army. It was a pity Brown had gone. The army was now reduced to three or, more correctly, two and a half, for you couldn't call the laborer a whole person. Was two and a half sufficiently large to cover operations at both Moor View and Coomber House, and to maintain communications?

"Of course, one of us'll have to stick round Coomber House till that confounded little fellow has sheered off," reflected Charlie. "Pip," the laborer called him. "Well, I'll see he gets the pip! I wonder what the lovely Joselyn has been confiding to Rupert while I've been away? Probably she's cleared things up a bit—and p'raps when I add what I now know to what Rupert now knows, we'll see a bit of the mountain through the mist!"

The thought of the lovely Joselyn added wings to his feet. The fang shook itself and divided. The fatherly charm came into view—the little activities of man tumbled around it, and while man, himself, was born, lived and died, in the distance twinkled the gently swinging sign of the Yellow Stag. The sight was welcome. Charlie's brain had been unusually extended, and needed a rest.

Possibly it was because it needed a rest that Charlie's brain did not function with full intelligence during the next five minutes. He reached the Yellow Stag, and, entering the front hall, gazed around in vague disappointment at its emptiness. The morning was getting hotter, and Charlie wanted things to come to him. Rupert should have been there, waiting to receive him. But Rupert was not there, so Charlie had to climb the stairs to the bedroom, and Rupert was not there, either.

"This is unkind," thought Charlie. "I have had a long walk, and I am no sylph."
He crossed to the wash stand, mopped his brow with a towel, and drank a glass of doubtful water. Then, as Rupert was still not there, he left the bedroom, and encountered Sally in the passage.

"Have you seen my friend?" he asked.
"Yes, sir," replied Sally. "He went out."

"Oh. Do you know where he went?"
"No, sir."

"Exactly. How should you? Well, did he leave a message, or anything?"
"No, sir."

Charlie frowned. That was inconsiderate of Rupert. And in this heat, too. An idea occurred to him. "Tell me," he said. "Did my friend go out alone?"

"Yes, sir."
"And how long ago?"
"About fifteen minutes, sir."

"Fifteen minutes. Ah," Charlie paused. There was another question he wanted to put, but did not know quite how to put it. "And—er—that lady, he floundered. "Is she out, too?"

"Yes, sir," answered Sally, and thought her thoughts.

The useless cross-examination might have continued, for although it was not leading anywhere, there was a pleasant lack of strain about it, and it was agreeable to chat man, and with someone who did not take one's wits, who possessed no mystery, and whose one could do anything. But a window in the passage, overlooking the road, suddenly attracted Charlie's eye. The head and shoulders of a man who was passing along the road on the opposite side, came into view. The head and shoulders of Mr. Simon Brill.

The sight of Mr. Simon Brill's head and shoulders brought with it an abrupt, grim vision of a tenantless bedroom. Charlie blinked, and switched on to a new subject.

"By the way," he said, casually, "do you happen to know of a place called Moor View around here?"

"Yes, sir," answered Sally. "Cunningham's place." That was Mr. Cunningham's place, that was the vague intimation in his reflection that a very really well-educated person ought to know that.

"Mr. Cunningham," murmured Charlie. "I wonder whether it's the same Mr. Cunningham I know? Young man, is he, with a golden moustache?"

Sally's eyes opened wide at this monstrously inaccurate description.

"Indeed he's not, sir," she responded. "He's an old man. Mr. Cunningham is. Gettin' on, anyway. Professor of physics or something."

"Oh, then it's not the Mr. Cunningham I know," said Charlie, sadly. "Mine is a professor, and wears pink socks. A professor, is he? I suppose that means he's a sort of a hermit, eh? Lives all alone with his physics?"

Sally had work to do. She began to dust a balustrade with a variegated cloth as she answered, with an air of finality:

"There's a daughter lives with him. Jest the two of 'em."

"Ah—a daughter," repeated Charlie.

The prospect of Moor View became a shade pleasant. All at once, it occurred

"The talkies are destined to take a distinct place in the world of entertainment," says Ernst Lubitsch, German-born movie maestro of Hollywood, interviewed in New York. "They will have something of the silent cinema, something of the speaking stage and something else not yet touched by screen or stage."

"Pantomime was the heart of the silent screen play as are dialogue and proper pronunciation of the stage," says the master. "Most talkies to date have been like stage plays, only not so good. There was little of the real movie pantomime about them. Do you get what I mean?"

"In reproducing a stage play on the screen without proper adaptation to the new medium one loses three important things: color, third dimension and the beauty of the true

And to your humble correspondent it looks as if Lubitsch put his finger on the talkie faults when he mentioned color, third dimension and the correct human voice and that his suggested remedy of less dialogue would be well worth trying out.

The talkies, of course, may make up for one or two of these faults, by having scenery. The third dimension advantage of the stage is often offset because the stage scenery does not lend itself well to the illusion. The camera catches scenery as the stage cannot. The talkies suffer also in the minor sounds. Sometimes they are heard—and sometimes not. And the silences in a talkie movie are awfully, awfully loud.

human voice without gaining a new virtue. That is bad. Just what form the talkies will take in course of development I cannot say. Nor do I believe anyone can. I do believe, however, happier results will be obtained by using dialogue only when dialogue is necessary—when for some particular scene it is a better medium than pantomime.

"An illustration: Two characters in a film play meet. They are friends. It is unnecessary to have: 'Hello, how are you?' and 'Fine, how are you?' It is far better to have a firm handshake, a smile and changing facial expression tell the story. You understand? That's fine."

"I have been in this business since 1913," says Lubitsch. "And still like it and am not crazy. You remember that 'something' I was talking about, that something that the talkies will have that the stage cannot? Well, Roland West caught a hint of it in 'Alibi'. Remember how the camera took you from the sidewalk, through the door, down a hall and into a night club as though you yourself were walking into the place? That's something like it."

"The stage cannot do that. No. It was fine. Yes, very fine, it was very fine."

WIFE IS PLAINTIFF IN DIVORCE SUIT; OTHER COURT NEWS

Asserting her husband has been an habitual drunkard for a year, Annie Pyles has brought suit for divorce from Ebenezer Pyles on grounds of extreme cruelty in Common Pleas Court.

They were married in Xenia April 12, 1920 and have no children living.

Plaintiff and defendant jointly own two lots on Lake St., according to the petition. The plaintiff charges that their household goods have been disposed of by her husband who appropriated the proceeds to his own use. AIRPLANE MAKERS SELL 1,000 PLANES

CLEVELAND, May 7.—Orders for $4,000,000 worth of airplanes have been booked by the Great Lakes Aircraft Corporation here, it was announced recently by vice president C. F. Van Sickle. The rush of orders came as a result of the exhibit of the company's new light plane at the All-American Show in Detroit last month.

The orders call for an output of more than 1,000 aircraft, the estimated factory production for 1929. Deliveries began last week.

The plant is operating twenty-four hours a day and it is planned to attain a daily output of ten planes each day by the middle of next month, according to Col. Benjamin F. Castle, U. S. A., retired, president of the company.

TWO-GUN OFFICER DIES

STAGING COMEBACK Friends Aid Former Governor In Retrieving Lost Fortunes.

Warren T. McCray as he appears today, and some of his stock.

By Central Press
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—"ORCHARD LAKE STOCK FARM—HOME OF PURE BRED HEREFORDS."

Back of this sign, marking an exhibit of sleek cattle at the Indiana state fair this fall, will be the dramatic story of the greatest "comeback" ever staged by a Hoosier farmer. It will be the hard earned triumph of Warren T. McCray, elected governor of Indiana in 1920.

McCray was caught in a financial debacle of falling farmland prices after the war and his personal fortune of more than one million dollars was swept away. He went from the governor's mansion to serve the minimum of a ten-year sentence in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., convicted of using the mails to defraud.

While former Governor McCray is staging his "comeback" on the farm, faithful friends in Washington are urging that President Herbert Hoover grant him a complete pardon, as he is now on parole.

"Making my own farm relief," is the term that McCray applies to his efforts on the 2,640-acre stock farm which he now operates in Newton county, near Kentland.

"I'm right in my element. We have shipped ten car loads of cattle that brought approximately $50,000 in five loads of hogs bringing $12,000. This season we have in 1,570 acres of corn, wheat or oats," says McCray modestly when questioned as to whether Orchard Lake Stock farm is paying since he took possession last September.

McCray returned from prison slightly more than seven months ago, broken in health. He was without funds to support his family, those who had waited for the day he would return. A group of faithful friends learned of his condition and banded themselves into a stock company financed his start on Orchard Lake Stock farm. This was the home place that he had operated before his troubles came. A friend had purchased and saved for him "Fairfax Last," a Hereford bull sired by "Perfection Fairfax," from which the McCray herd had been built and became famed throughout stock raising circles. The friend sent the bull to McCray prepaid as a gift. He shed tears over his happiness.

If McCray permitted his books to be kept loosely prior to his fall, no such charge can be made with fairness now. "This sum for improvement," he says with a thumb on a total in the cost sheet, showing where every penny goes. His latest purchase was a hack to carry twenty-one little children of ten, and of the farm to Sunday School in Kentland each week.

There is something more impressive than the money this sixty-three-year-old man, starting from scratch to build a fortune, reports.

RABBIT BREEDERS FIGHT TULAREMIA

An educational campaign, advising the public of the harm and dangers of eating wild rabbits, due to tularemia, a disease prevalent among the animals and transmittable to humans, is being planned by rabbit breeders. Death often results from the affliction, it is said.

Domestic rabbits, breeders say, have never been known to be affected as the disease does not appear in domesticated animals. It is therefore urged to eat domestic rabbit meat only.

Breeders are interested in the welfare of the domestic rabbit industry and besides wishing to warn the public in regard to the disease, want it realized that domestic rabbits are not affected.

Man becomes affected with tularemia by handling wild carcasses or cutting them up, or skinning the cotton-tail or snow shoe rabbit.

FEW PATRONIZE PELEE ISLAND BAR

SANDUSKY, May 7.—Unless the coming warm weather creates an appetite for highballs, rickies, beers and other alcoholic beverages, Pelee Islanders who went to considerable expense to "fix up" to accommodate thirsty Ohioans, may find themselves in bankruptcy ere long.

The drinks are to be had all right. But no one seems "dry" enough to seek them at the island in Canadian Lake Erie, just over the international boundary line twenty miles due north of Sandusky. Only a few persons have taken advantage of the "service station."
